Easter lambs bring up to $1.30

By JOANNE SPAHR

LANCASTER, Pa.—For sheep breeders, the coming of Easter traditionally brings with it the annual sales of Spring slaughter lambs and goat kids for use in the holiday meals among individuals of Mediterranean descent. This year was no different, with Easter sales stretching out for a seven-day period throughout Pennsylvania markets and ending the Wednesday before Easter.

Prices were higher this year with as much as $1.30 paid for 10-35 pound choice milk-fed Spring lambs.

These prices were paid at the New Holland Sales Stables and Vintage where over 100 animals, combined sold near this level.il. Choice milk-fed kid goats went for as high as $40 a head at the Chambersburg market.

In comparison to last year's trading which saw a decrease in young animals, this year's market was flooded. The Lancaster Stock Yards experienced the largest receipts in 12 years with 2075 head sold during a 4½ hour auction on Monday which attracted approximately 50 buyers. Other markets also felt this overabundance.

Consumer affects farm trends

By DIETER KRIEG

STOUCHSBURG, PA. – An educational meeting for area dairymen was held here recently to chart past developments and possible future trends. Dubbed "The 1977 Dairy Industry Update," the event is sponsored annually by NEDCO milk producers and affiliates.

Ralph Smith, director of education for NEDCO, referred to the recent increase in milk price supports, stating flatly: "The price support program is largely around to assure adequate milk supplies for consumers, not to put money into farmers' pockets." He also noted that milk prices are usually up above the support level anyway.

Explaining the support system, Smith said it works on account of the federal government buying "milk solids" – butter, cheese, powder and barrel cheese.

According to Smith, the new support price of $9.00 per hundred-weight will have little effect on the market this month. The full

Cow gets legislative citation

By JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Reporter

HARRISBURG,Pa. – The highest classified registered Holstein cow in the state has become the first animal to receive a citation from the Pennsylvania House of Representatives.

Woodbine Ivanhoe Mollie, who at age 14 became the 13th animal in the breed to score the near-perfect classification of 97 points, received her citation during a "Hello Mollie!" party given for her by the York County Holstein Association on March 31 at the Farm Show Building.

Representative James M. Burd of Butler County sponsored and presented the unique recognition to Mollie and the George Knight, Jr., family of Airville R2, who bred and own the cow.

The House citation saluted Mollie's achievements and contribution to the state's dairy industry. She has produced 251,615 pounds of milk to date in her lifetime and been named an Honorable Mention All-American winner. Co-sponsoring the presentation was Robert Butera, minority leader in the House of Representatives.

Raymond J. Kerstetter, Pennsylvania Deputy Secretary of Agriculture, represented the state Department of Agriculture during the recognition

Carter meets Farmers Union

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Pennsylvanian Albert Mellinger, along with National Farmers Union officials from 22 states, had a wide-ranging 80 minute discussion late Tuesday afternoon at the White House in which the farm group leaders indicated the "dismay" of the nation's farmers with farm commodity support rates established for 1977 and proposed fro 1978.

President Jimmy Carter spent 50 minutes with the Farmers Union officials.

The discussion included Vice President Mondale, Secretary of Agriculture Bergland, and White House aides Stuart Eizenstat and Lynn Daft.

"From the campaign assurances, farmers expected that support protection at the cost of production meant the full cost of production. What we have gotten so far is an almost straight-line extension of the Butz support levels," National President of the Farmers Union, Tony Dechant, said. "On top of that we are being nickel-and-dimed in the budget process."

President Carter said that "for the future we would like to have a stable agriculture with an agressive export capability."

The President noted Monday's increases in support levels for 1977 and

Cinderella wins Holstein show

HARRISBURG, Pa. – Over 300 animals paraded around the large arena of the Farm Show building last Saturday as the Pennsylvania Holstein Association held their 24th annual Black and White Show.

The coveted grand champion banner and trophy went to Andfar Astronaut Cinderella, owned by the Robert Kauffman family of Elizabethtown. The five-year old cow also placed first in her Aged Cow class.

Christine Gitt, Littlestown R1, won the Reserve Champion awards with Amply Rag Apple Ormsby Nellie, her eight-year-old 4-H project animal.

High point scores for accumulated winnings during the show by home-bred animals brought the Premier Breeder banner to Tom and Cindy Shaeffer, Huntsdale Stock Farms, Carlisle. Mowry Farms, Roaring Spring R1, received the Premier Exhibitor presentation.

Judging the day long competion was William H. Hill, Jr., of Crewe, Va.

The show was the culmination of a three-day event by the state association. Thursday over 200 calves were sold in the annual calf sale,with a number of animals going to out-of-state buyers. Bred heifers and cows were featured in the Friday sale.

The following are placings of the shows:

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Barley family says thank-you

Editor, Lancaster Farming:

We hardly know where to begin in thanking the many people who put forth so much effort to help save the 58 acres of our farm.

First, we must say our thanks to God, for he was the one who answered our prayers. Then we wish we could go to everybody in Lancaster County who signed a petition, wrote a letter on our hehalf, spoke verbally for us, or was just great value to our economy. thinking about us, and shake their hands, and say, "Thanks for all your help." This is a fine example of what people can do by working together.

We would hope that everyone could continue to put their efforts into preserving our fine farmand in Lancaster County as well as across our state. We think most of us are aware of the importance of agriculture to Lancaster County. The dollar value of agricultural products to the County is of Almost equally important is the tourist trade which is attracted to Lancaster County by our fertile farms.

The problem of land use is being tackled by all levels of our government. Every level of government from our townships to the Federal government is seeking a solution. Get involved and make your ideas known to the government officials. We are sure they will be happy to hear from you.

Game report 'lopsided'

Dear Editor:

I conclude your article stating Game Law violations up 275 per cent is as great a lopsided presentation of fiction as commonly emanates out of Harrisburg.

Wonder just who is responsible for these distortions and omissions?

The single greatest misstatement is; The Game Law is almost the same in 1977 as it was in 1947" This Rip Van Winkle has been asleep.

To name a few changes, No shooting at game within 25 yards of a highway, limit per deer hunting roster of 25. Change of hunting hours from seven to five to one and six eleventh seconds before the seventeen sixty fourth seconds after or something like that. No littering law, which game protectors also enforce. Suffice it to say we've had more than thirty changes in the Game Law since 1947.

All designed to collect more revenue. Consider also the fact in 1947 we had no bow hunting, no early small game season, no special doe hunting, no late small game season, no muzzle loading season, no 90-day trapping season, plus the fact that the greatest percentage of violations are for hunting in safty zones. In 1947 the cities had not yet migrated into Mr. Rabbit's briar patch.

A shrinking hunting area more hunters combined with a 100 per cent increase in game protectors together with all the aforementioned are relative to the caue and much more so - than what your article states.

Concerning Farmers Union Resolutions No. 14, which states: We recommend a change in the Pennsylvania Game Law which would allow farmers to keep deer killed because of crop damage whether land is posted or not.

Keeping the deer killed, is not the issue here, since it is very illegal to kill a deer in Pennsylvania for crop damage, while your land is posted. I know of any number of farmers who got this lesson by paying one hundred dollars.

respectufily,
John Kutz

York thanks Bob Bergland

Dear Editor:

I want to commend United States Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland on his recent action to establish a new parity level of support prices on dairy products. The improvement in the level to 83 per cent of parity follows closely the testimony that I submitted before the Senate Agriculture Committee on March 1, 1977. However, it should be remembered that there is a need for a new Farm Bill to replace the one that is expiring this year, and the level of support prices is only one part of the necessary action that should be taken with respect to agricultural matters.

A nine percent increase in the support price reflects about what the average increase is in the cost of milk production to dairy farmers. It does not take care of the problems most dairy farmers have experienced in areas where there has been drought or an excess of rain, such as what occurred in the State of Vermont and northern New York last year. Those farmers are experiencing substantial problems of higher costs, and the improvement in the support price will only partially offset their higher cost of production. Therefore, the improvement in the support price is no panacea for dairymen, but it is much welcomed.

Consumers may not be affected immediately and, if and when they are, certainly not in excess of six cents per gallon. If consumers are concerned about the increase in the support price, they should be reminded that should the support price not have been increased, the exodus of dairy farmers and the loss of milk supplies could be much more costly to the consumer in the long run. Moreover, six cents per gallon is less than one cent per pound increase in cost to consumers. What are we talking about in these days of inflation?

Those who are concerned about government expenditures in agriculture should be reminded that, since 1970, the expenditures in the national budget for agriculture have consistently gone down and today it is considerably less than what it was in 1970, and it is projected to continue to go down. These expenditures also include such items as the Food Stamp Program which should not be an allocated cost to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Again, we commend, the Secretary of Agriculture for the position he has taken. We look forward to further changes in agricultural legislation to insure adequate supplies of food and fiber and shelter basic to our life style and part of our agricultural system.

Wise land use encouraged

Dear Editor:

Let me open by saying, thank God for men of courage and foresight, of which you are a fine example.

I would like to offer my most sincere appreciation for your articles in Lancaster Farming in regards to the taking of farmland for lesser uses. In the February 19 issue concerning the Red Creek Dam near Landingville in Schuykill County, March 12 issue the taking of a portion of the Barley Brothers' farm for a garbage dump.

Hopefully it will be by efforts such as yours that people will be better informed as to the very imminent need to make wise land use decisions. You have at your disposal a media form which reaches many readers. In reading your articles perhaps some will become more active in positions of government where land use decisions are made.

I have struggled vigorously for ten years to alert others, including legislators and governors of the need to take action to preserve agricultural land in Pennsylvania. Hopefully all this effort has not been in vain.

The Pennsylvania legislature is finally taking a step in the proper direction in preparing a bill to stop or restrain the condemnation of farmland for highways and the disposal of liquid and solid wastes.

However, this bill desperately needs to be expanded to include all agencies with Eminent Domain Powers. The largest

RESURRECTED LIFE

Lesson for April 10, 1977

Background Scripture: Mark 15:42 through 16:8; Luke 23:50 through 24:12.

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 15:12-19.

To me there is no more sacred nor mystical place in all England than Glastonbury. It is a place that has to be experienced; description alone could not suffice.

Many people know it as the reputed burial site of the historical King Arthur and Queen Guinivere within the magnificent ruins of Glastonbury Abbey, once the spiritual capitol of Britain. Yet, there is another tradition at Glastonbury, generally less well-known although greatly disputed, that Glastonbury was the place where Christianity was first introduced into Britain and by none other than Joseph of Arimathea.

The stone rolled away

When I first came across that tradition, I dismissed it as so much religious wishful-thinking-which it still may well be. Yet, as I read more and more about Glastonbury, I discovered that this tradition may not be as far-fetched as it first seemed to be. Although we may probebly never know for certain, there is some reason to believe that in the early years of the Church following the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, Joseph of Arimathea may have landed at Glastonbury and brought the Gospels to the shores of Britain.

It is a fascinating speculation, particularly when we contemplate the Joseph we encounter so briefly in the story of Jesus in the Gospels. Mark tells us that Joseph was a member of the Sanhedrin, the Jewish Council in Jerusalem (Mark 15:43). He also indicates that Joseph was "looking for the kindgom of God" (15:43). Furthermore, Luke tells us that Joseph did not approve of the Sanhedrin's decision against Jesus (Luke 23:50, 51). Matthew adds that Joseph was a rich man and a "disciple of Jesus" (Matthew 27:57). All three tell us that he asked Pilate for the body of Jesus after the crucifixion, prepared the body for burial and placed it in his garden tomb.

He took courage

From these sparce details it has often been conjectured that Joseph was, at least until Good Friday, a secret disciple of Jesus. He was rich and prominent and could hardly afford to let his discipleship be known. If this conjecture is accurate, then Joseph made a remarkable change in his life the day Jesus was crucified. When it seemed that everyone else had forsaken him - including Simon Peter - Joseph "took courage" and did a daring thing: asking Pilate for Jesus' body, Joseph identified himself once and for all as a follower of the Master.

Undoubtedly, whatever the facts may have been, that Easter weekend changed Joseph's life forever. No longer would he be known as a rich member of the Council, but as the disciple in whose lovely garden tomb the resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ was first discovered and experienced. It is believed that the resurrection faith sent the Apostle Thomas to India; perhaps it also sent Joseph of Arimathea to Britain.

Thus, Easter Sunday marks, not only the ressurection of Jesus Christ, but also the resurrected life for Joseph, the early apostles, and, if we like him "take courage", for us as well.

TO INSPECT LIGHTNING RODS

The thunderstorm season is at hand and folks with lightning rods should be sure they are in good condition.

During the Winter months it is possible that hay, straw, or other materials might have gotten caught on the rods. Also, be sure that the rod system is well grounded in moist soil. It has been found that some of the ground cables rust off, or get pulled out of the ground. In order for the system to work, it should be free of any obstructions, and be grounded into moist soil.

TO WAIT FOR DRY SOIL

It is still early Spring and plenty of time to plow and get the crops started.

MUELLER FRE-HEATER
PATENT PENDING

1. ● Save energy and get FREE hot water by capturing the heat you re .wasting when cooling milk!
- ● In the Fre-Heater the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water
- ● A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 140° F water to the storage tank A mixing valve also delivers 'prepping' temperature water
- ● Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system and you get Free hot water!
- ● Eliminates the most common causes of slow cooling cold weather starting problems and compressor failures because
  1 There is no air-cooled condenser to become clogged or fans to fail or generate noise
  2 The Fre-Heater is installed in doors
  3 The head pressure is very stable assuring longer compressor life
- ● A Fre-Heater operating on 60° F well water will produce a volume of 140° F water similar to the amount of milk produced during a milking

MUELLER HiPerForm*

2. ● Patented refrigerant control system developed by Westinghouse
- ● Fast cooling — by combining the HiPerForm control system with the efficient Mueller Temp-Plate® evaporator (cooling plate) Split evaporator and controls for dual condensing units
- ● Gentle but thorough agitation aids cooling and an automatic interval timer assures uniform blend of temperature and butterfat
- ● Service-free dependability and longer compressor life due to unique control system and factory-sealed, pre-charged refrigerant tubing
- ● Wall-mounted control cabinet for both cooler and Mueller-Matic controls
- ● Mueller Craftsmanship 100% stainless steel construction, lower, elliptical design, and large radius corners for easy cleaning

*A refrigerant control system licensed under and covered by Westinghouse Patent 3 264,837 and perhaps others

MUELLER MATIC

3. ● If you're still hand washing your cooler, your valuable time is "going down the drain" with the wash water
- ● Simple, 3-step operation
  1 Insert the jet-tube
  2 Fill detergent container and check acid level
  3 Switch unit "on" for automatic operation
- ● Daily use on thousands of dairy farms has proved that Mueller-Matic cleans the cooler consistently better than hand scrubbing
- ● Mueller-Matic gives your cooler a hot water pre-rinse, hot-water and detergent wash, hot water rinse, and a cold water acid rinse—all automatically
- ● Unique Mueller-Matic jet-tube spray action and precision-metered acid rinse sanitize every inch of cooler interior Milk stone build-up is eliminated and bacteria count is sharply reduced

LIFE on the farm

By Dieter Krieg, Editor

Easter -- a farmer just can't help but notice it

The day and its religious implications come at a most appropriate time every year. It's the day proclaiming the Resurrection of our Lord, Jesus Christ -- symbolizing new life in a miraculous way. But that's not all.

Take a look around and see what else has risen -- what all, in fact, rises every year at this time!

The singing robins are back. Flowers are up. The grass is turning green. Cows are roaming on pastures again. Trees are appearing in magnificent robes of a soft green texture. Plowed fields are releasing that fresh, earthy scent. Children are playing in sandboxes. Baby chicks and ducklings are hatching. The days are warmer and more welcome -- inviting us all and everything around us to live.

God has granted the entire northern hemisphere a new lease on life and the miracle of it all is sprouting up and out all around us. It's a beautiful time of year. The Easter story fits right in.

Mention Easter and "Life" comes to mind. And I think of Mother, since mothers are most symbolic of life

Mom always spent hours of her time preparing for an egg and chocolate hunt on the front lawn Thoughts of Mother also bring flowers to mind, because Mom has never failed to spend a part of her Spring days with flowers.

Flowers are life and life is Easter. It all ties in. Easter -- Life -- Mother -- Flowers -- Beauty -- Spring -- Life -- and back to Easter.

Easter is a miracle, just like life itself is a miracle. We almost take a daily blossoming of life for ganted, but oh how precious and irreplaceable it is! The birth of a calf, standing on wobbly legs and staring wide-eyed at the world. The emergence of flowers -- delicate petals pushing through soil which was frozen just a few weeks ago. The songs of robins as they lure the sun over the horizon each morning.

The Easter season has arrived and it's being proclaimed by all living creatures

Have a happy Easter, everyone!

Price Index up one per cent

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Index of Prices Received by Farmers increased two points (one per cent) to 189 per cent of its January-December 1967 average during the month ended March 15, 1977, USDA reports.

Contributing most to the increase since mid-February were higher prices for soybeans, oranges, cattle, and cotton. Lower prices for hogs, eggs, and milk were partially offsetting The Index was three points (1½ pct.) above last year.

Prices received by farmers for poultry and eggs decreased nine points (five pct.) to 183 during the month. Prices for eggs at 58.8 cents per dozen showed a decline of 7.4 cents from February. Broilers brought 24.3 cents per lb., up three-tenths of a cent from February.

Prices received by farmers for fruit increased 10 points (eight pct.) to 132 during the month. Contributing most to the increase were higher prices for oranges and apples. Lower prices for grapefruit and pears were slightly offsetting. The index was six points (four pct.) below a year earlier.

Prices received by farmers for dairy products decreased 3 points (1½ pct.) to 187 during the month. All milk declined 12 cents to $9.42 per cwt. Milk eligible for fluid market, at $9.67 per cwt. declined 15 cents.

Energy, food system discussed

HARRISBURG, Pa. - The pennsylvania Department of Agriculture hosted representatives of Pennsylvania agribusiness, the Pa. Department of Commerce, and university research and Extension personnel at several meetings held recently in Harrisburg to examine the energy problem and the future of the food system in the Commonwealth.

According to Agriculture Secretary Kent D. Shelhamer, the issues discussed were: food system energy use, short run price and supply outlook for electricity and petroleum products, plus the impact on consumer food prices, employment and how agribusiness firms might reduce their vulnerability to rising energy prices and supply shortages in the future.

A food System Energy Task Force, under the chairmanship of James Adams, Jr., Dauphin Distribution Services, Inc., Camp Hill recommended several high priority measures for food processors, wholesalers, retailers, and service agencies in the state. Shelhamer said the recommendations called for the establishment of an energy management team in each business to seek better ways to utilize energy within their organization. A training program for that group was also stressed.

The task force urged firms to develop immediate plans to deal with future possible inergy shortages of fuels and electricity and that an energy inventroy for the food processing and sistribution industries be developed to point up the interdependency of the various components of the food sector.

Other members of the task force are: James Oyler, George Wolff, Jack McNellis, Albert Vicks, and Donald Parke.

$304,430 earmarked for ag research

HARRISBURG -- Agriculture Secretary Kent Shelhamer recently announced the approval of twelve continuing agricultural research projects for a total of $304,430. Approval came from the nine-member Agriculture Research Committee chaired by Shelhamer, with funding from a $400,000 allocation from harness and horse racing revenues.

Seven of the projects are being done by Pennsylvania State University, four by the University of Pennsylvania and one is a joint effort between Edinboro State College, the Opportunities Industrialization Center, Inc. of Philadelphia.

Shelhamer said the Agriculture Research Committee's review mechanism, established in 1973, worked smoothly in the process of determining the progress achieved in each project area.

The Agriculture Secretary also said that new project proposals amounting to over $700,000 were discussed. New projects totaling just over $90,000 will be approved at a meeting of the Research Committee toward the end of April unless further funds become available, Shelhamer declared

The continuing projects, approved by a majority vote of the nine members, are -- Sewage Sludge, as it affects crop production and mineral elements in the food chain, Penn State, $50,500. -- Maize Germ Plasm, for use in hybrids grown from seed by Pennsylvania farmers, Penn State, $2,419.-- Beef Forage Practices, Penn State, $8,412. -- Wheat Streak Mosaic, control for yield and quality loss in wheat, Penn State, -- Mushroom Spoilage, to study the influence of cultural practices and processing parpameters on spoilage of canned mushrooms, Penn State, $25,000. -- Corn Stalk Rot, aimed at controlling the disease, Penn State, $23,863. -- Horse Respiratory Disease, University of Pennsylvania, $20,959. -- Chronic Diarrhea, to control the condition in horses, University of Pennsylvania, $21,530 -- Producer-Consumer Marketing, of Edinboro State College, Opportunities Industrialization Center, Inc and the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Philadelphia, $8,397. -- Potato Verticillium Wilt, to control the disease by cultural and genetic methods, Penn State, $23,834. - Horse Exercise Response, to test horses with decreased exercise performance as well as norman horses, University of Pennsylvania, $18,635. -- Distribution of bovine Leukemia Virus, University of Pennsylvania, $20,755.

Young Farmers discuss no-till

LEBANON, Pa.—Ernest R. Bredefeld, sales representative from Chevron Chemical Company, was guest speaker for the monthly meeting of the Northern Lebanon Young Farmers Association at Norlebco High School, recently.

Bredefeld spoke on no-till farming. He explained how to adjust the equipment and the necessary chemical and management needs for a profitable crop.

Richard Neff, a no-till consultant, was present to share his experiences with growing no-till corn.

The group volunteered to help Arthur Kunkle, a fellow member, who was recently hospitalized.

July 10 was announced as the date for the local Young Farmer Summer picnic of Lions Park, Fredericksburg.

It was reported that State College will be the site of the Pennsylvania Young Farmer picnic on July 8 and 9.

Processed meats are so convenient they save you time for things you want to do, and so tasty your family will think you spent hours in the kitchen.

Franks, Canadian style bacon and most hams are fully cooked and can be merely heated and served. You can prepare them outdoors or inside for versatility.

If you are serving ham, which is full of high-quality protein and contains minerals and important B vitamins like thiamine, be sure not to overcook it and lose juices you could be enjoying at the dinner table Ham leftovers can be used in a big chef's salad, or in a ham-corn casserole, or to add flavor and substance to split pea soup

Ephrata freshman is top dairy products judge

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER – The best dairy products judge among vo-ag students in three counties is Ephrata's Barry Herman, a young man who has never milked a cow or imbibed more than his share of milk. The 14-year old freshman from the Cloister FFA Chapter outscored 41 other contestants on Tuesday afternoon during an FFA dairy products judging contest held here. Penn Dairies hosted the event for the seventh consecutive year. Eight schools from Chester, Lancaster, and York counties were represented.

The team title in the contest went to Ephrata for the fourth straight year under coach Ernest Orr, who has been at the school for an equal number of years.

Cliff Martin of New Holland placed second in the individuals contest, in which the lowest score wins. He trailed Herman by a score of 86 to 74. In third place, with 87 points, was Ephrata's Ronald Good. Bob Bachman from Penn Manor and Lynn Beiler from Ephrata both had 90 points for fourth and fifth place, respectively.

Rounding out the top ten were Ron Clark and Brenda O'Donnell of Solanco; Art Riexinger of Penn Manor; Harold Kauffman of Ephrata and Max Messner of New Holland.

The second-place team of Solanco with 507 points to Ephrata's 485. In third place was Penn Manor with 539 points, followed by New Holland, 670; and Pequea Valley, 716. The winning team was presented with a trophy – the third of its kind after the first two were retired to winning schools Ephrata took permanent possession of the last dairy products judging cup after winning three years straight

Orr told Lancaster Farming that vo-ag students at Ephrata are taught a course in dairy products during their freshman year The best students in the class are then pulled aside to form a team. This year's quintet was formed about three weeks ago and the group has had practice sessions about twice a week in preparation for the tri-county contest. Their high individual this year, Herman, does not live on a farm, and neither has he ever milked a cow. His father, Henry, is in landscaping.

The contest itself lasted about two hours, after which score sheets were tabulated and winners chosen.

Involved in the test are: Ten milk samples to be scored for flavor and odor; ten sediment discs; ten cheese samples for identification; ten cottage cheese sampes to be scored and evaluated for flavor, odor, body, texture, appearance and color; ten milker unit claws to be scored on defects present; and 50 objective questions on milk production and marketing.

Barry Herman, right, accepts the team trophy from Dr. Charles Livak, head of the Quality Control Department at Penn Dairies, Lancaster. With them is dairy judging team coach Ernest Orr, who has guided the Ephrata team to four successive team titles.

Why Silo-King Works

Silo-King is a roughage preservative that contains a combination of refined enzymes, preservatives, antioxidants and other agents.

The antioxidants stabilize the simple sugars, vitamins and other nutrients. They prevent oxygen trapped in the silage from burning these nutrients which in turn causes the silage to heat and juice. The more severe the heating and/or juicing, the greater the loss of digestible protein, energy and other nutrients.

While the antioxidants are doing their work, the enzymes start breaking down simple (sugars and starches) and complex carbohydrates (fiber) creating a very rich environment for lactic acid producing bacteria to reproduce. This speeds up the silage fermentation process and results in bringing the acidity (PH) of the silage down to a desireable PH of 4 or below quite rapidly.

Because of the rapid action of the enzymes it is possible to create this rich environment for the bacteria. As a matter of fact, that is what enzymes do: accelerate the transformation of carbohydrates to lactic acid. Higher levels of lactic acid also represents a higher concentration of energy in the silage.

Only anaerobic bacteria (live without air) can produce lactic acid fast enough to reduce the PH of the silage in the shortest possible time.

Aerobic bacteria (lives only in the presence of air) utilize oxygen to burn carbohydrates and protein, transforming them into carbon dioxide, ammonia and water. This results in the production of high levels of butyric acid which causes silage to be rancid, have a loud unpleasant smell and be unpalatable. The water released contributes to silo juicing.

Why not add only anerobic bacteria to the silage instead of enzymes? That would be like buying cows and having no feed for them. They would simply die. Why? Because you are filling the silo with material that has been exposed to air and more air is trapped in the silo at filling time regardless of the type of storage. Therefore, the predominant bug in the silo at first is aerobic bacteria.

Even if you add tons of lactic acid producing bacteria, they cannot work efficiently in the presence of air, so they become inactive until most of the oxygen is used up. By this time most of the damage has already been done with resulting loss of energy, digestible protein and other nutrients. Palatability is also reduced which can severely effect animal performance due to a lower feed intake.

Silo-King antioxidants and preservatives make it very difficult for the undesireable aerobic bug to find anything to eat, and you know what happens when you don't eat. At the same time enzymes are making food available for the good bug enabling him to reproduce rapidly, speed up the entire fermentation process resulting in the highest quality silage possible.

Only Silo-King contains this secret formula of refined enzymes (not crude enzyme by-products) preservatives and antioxidants.

You wouldn't think of planting corn without using a weed killer. Neither should you think of making silage without using Silo-King.

Carter meets

the recommended levels for the four-year farm bill and said he regarded them as "better than the Butz figures."

Carter said the support levels would be revfwed, but gave no indication of when changes might be made.

"There will be adjustments as we find them possible," he said. The President asked the Farmers Union leaders to keep in close and frequent consultation with him and the Department of Agriculture.

"We trust your judgement and need your advice even if we cannot entirely agree," he said. "We're approachable."

In an opening session with Vice President Mondale and Secretary Bergland, the Farmers Union presidents were told that President Carter is committed to make international commodity agreements on farm products work.

"We will start with sugar very shortly and will later work on grains," Bergland assured them, citing his recent talks with Canadian and Australian officials and his forthcoming May talks in Ottawa, Canada, with representatives of Canada, Australia, and perhaps Argentina.

The Tuesday afternoon meeting did not resolve a fundamental question involving the contention of Carter and Berland that the U.S. wheat support levels could not go above $2.25 a bushel because we would cease to be competive in world markets.

Bergland, and later Carter, had contended that a U S. wheat support of $2.25 a bushel is the rough equivalent, because of transportation and currency differences, to the Canadian initial guarantee to producers of $3.00 a bushel.

Farmers Union officials responded that the Canadian initial price-guarantee has litttle significance as an indicator of actual selling prices of Canadian wheat.

"The price that counts is the selling price set by the Canadian wheat board," said Robert G. Lewis, National Secretary of Farmers Union and chief economist of that organization. "In all but two or three of the past 40 years, actual selling prices for Canadian wheat have been higher than the initial guarantee. Last year, the Canadian government increased its initial guarantee from $3.00 to $3.75 per bushel at the time the harvest was beginning. The Canadian system is a pool, and the initial price guarantee is not all comparable to the U.S. support loan rate. My information from both government and producer sources is that the Canadian and Australian wheat boards are eager to raise their selling prices, if we would raise ours. It is the low U.S. support and market price that is depressing the world trading price for what."

President Dechant warned that the low U.S. wheat loan rate seriously compromises chances to negotiate an international wheat agreement with a minium price higher than $2.25 a bushel.

President Carter reviewed recent decisions on the special programs of draught and disaster assistance, which will total more than $840 million, with $600 million in disaster aid loans. He also noted that producers in 475 counties are now included in emergency livestock assistance programs.

Told of the credit crisis attributed by Farmers Union to the low levels of price support, Carter expressed concern about the problem. "It all gets back to prices," said the Farmers Union leaders. Carter announced that he has asked Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal to ascertain why loan funds for agricultural purposes appear insufficient in Nebraska, Colorado and other states.

The President expressed confidence that a good team had been put together in USDA, explaining that the process had been slow because he had insisted on being careful and responsible and had imposed strict guidelines on conflicts of interest.

"I have been President less than three months and have had to make more than 1,400 important appointments," he explained.

"I thought it was a worthwhile meeting," said Albert Mellinger, chairman of the Advisory Board of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union. "It was inconclusive, yet I feel we have reason to feel encouraged!."

program. He pointed out the economic value realized by Pennsylvania from the dairying industry.

"We are the dairy state that we are because our families work harder and try harder. Mollie has helped to keep us in the top five dairy states in the nation," said Kerstetter. "If Mollie is to be congratulated, the family that raised her is to be respected even more."

"If you walked a mile for every gallon of milk that Mollie produced, you'd walk to the moon," Kerstetter calculated.

Mollie received a number of awards during the program. Included were a framed photo and pedigree from the National Holstein Association and a photo of her Excellent son, Woodbine Milkman from the United Breeders.

Other speakers during the evening event included James Pound, director of Extension for the Holstein-Friesian Association of America; William Nichol, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association; David Yoder, general manager of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative; and John T. Smith, York County Extension agent.

Entertainment for the program featured the Singing Millers, a dairy farm family from Dauphin County, and musical group Ken Lightner and the Playboys.

AEB funds cholesterol research

PARK RIDGE, ILL.—Lipid researchers from university centers across the United States have been awarded research grants totaling over $300,000 by the American Egg Board following submission of research protocols and applications for grants-in-aid. The American Egg Board is a national organization of 18 members appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture under the authority of the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act. In an effort to learn the truth about dietary cholesterol and to help resolve the scientific controversy about cholesterol, AEF, under the supervision of the United States Department of Agriculture, has awarded research grants with the stipulation that researchers may publish their findings freely. More research grants are currently under consideration.

Bomgardner has carcass show champ

By JOANNE SPAHR

PINE GROVE, Pa. - Charles Bomgardner of Blue Mountain View Farms, Annville, a purebred Hampshire breeder in business with his father and two brothers, was named grand champion of the Tri-County Pork Producers' carcass show last Saturday evening at that group's annual dinner meeting. Although Bomgardner won the award individually, he pointed out that the trophy is the family's honor since they are all involved in the business. Each member of the clan has a main responsibility on the farm, and Charles' is taking care of the hogs. Blue Mountain View Farms has 45 sows

The final scores for the contest were computed by adding the ham-loin percentage, the visual score, and twice the daily gain of each animal. Bomgardner's animal averaged a 1.31 pound daily gain, a 31.5 ham-loin percentage, and an on-foot score of 3.25.

Reserve champion honors went to William Herring of Schuylkill Haven. Herring's animal averaged 1.38 pounds per day, had a 30.5 ham-loin percentage and had a visual score of 4.0

Third place in the contest went to Ellwood Houser, Lebanon PS, fourth to Dennis Loy, Pine Grove; and fifth to William Herring.

Also during the evening's festivities, the pork producers elected new members to the board of directors for the coming year. The Tri-County organization consists of the three counties of Lebanon, Schuylkill, and Dauphin and has two directors representing each county.

Christian Seaman, Grantville, and Leon Arnold, Lebanon, now represent Lebanon County; Clair Hartman, Gratz, and Douglas Hancock, Hershey, represent Dauphin County and Dennis Loy, Pine Grove and Leroy Hinkle, Ashland, represent Schuylkill County Directors at large are Ellwood Houser, Lebanon, Larry Arnold, Myerstown, and Francis Willier, Pitman

Also chosen at Saturday evening's meeting were executive officers for the organization. Larry Arnold, was chosen president; Dennis Loy, vice president; and Christian Seaman, secretary-treasurer.

The entertainment for the banquet was provided by Eugene Wengert and his wife from St. Thomas. The Wengerts went on a People to People tour of Europe, and showed slides of their trip to the pork producers.

Larry Arnold, left, president of the board of directors for the Tri-County Pork Producers, congratulates Charles Bomgardner for exhibiting the grand champion hog of the Tri-County carcass show.

This was the Bicentennial Summer on the Luke Good farm near Lititz.
Before we know, the Spring will pass into Summer and these scenes will be frequent.

Consumer

impact is not expected until June.

The education director predicts that a Class II price of $9.04 per hundred-weight will be the low for the year. Blend prices are likely to average 12 to 15 cents higher than a year ago.

Smith acknowledged that the new support level is going to give some stability to the market and that it will be especially beneficial to young farmers. "They'll need every penny of it they can get," he remarked.

Addressing himself to government farm programs in general, Smith told the gathering of dairymen that government farm programs are not for the farmer. Instead, they're to insure adequate food supplies. He sees the nation's economy as continuing to be the victim of inflation; and hinted that it might be worse in years to come than it has been.

The NEDCO official informed the farmers that significant shifts are being seen within the dairy products market. Affected by changing trends are consumption patterns, cow numbers, production per cow, Class I and II utilization, profit margins, Federal Order memberships, and milk component values.

On the latter, Smith said that milk used to be valued two-thirds on butterfat content and one-third on solids-non-fat (SNF). Now the reverse is true, even though prices are not being paid according to the new emphasis. The new trend is a result of consumer buying patterns. Fat is being pushed aside or entirely avoided, while protein is in demand.

Skim milk, Smith pointed out, used to be an unmarketable item. Now it's priced the same as regular milk. The trend is illustrated by the statistic that per capita butter consumption used to be 16 pounds. That's fow down to just four pounds.

Smith went on to say that in 1905 butterfat was king, and paying prices were based on 4.2 per cent butterfat, as opposed to 3.5 per cent today.

Cheese is becoming the major pricing factor now, Smith exclaimed, and some figuring is being done on 3.2 per cent protein.

The switch from butter pricing to cheese pricing is just one message the consumer is relaying to the farmer, says Smith. He emphasizes that ,cmnsumers will be determining whether you (the dairyman) stay in milk production or not." He predicts it will take at least five years before the protein pricing system is adopted industry-wide. An 8.25 per cent minimum standard for SNF has already been established, he indicated, and fast methods for milk protein testing have been developed. The program is being pushed in New England, he said. Asked whether or not there was any direct correlation between butterfat and protein, Smith answered there was not.

Leon Musser, NEDCO district director from Lewisburg, gave a detailed account of milk production trends in the Northeast. He noted that the number of cows in the United States has dropped by nearly 50 per cent since 1962. Annual milk production per cow has increased in almost every year everywhere, but much greater than usual increases have been recorded since 1972. In Pennsylvania, production per year has increased about 500 pounds per cow over five years ago.

Consumption of dairy products is down, however. What's holding sales up is the fact that there are more people to feed.

Also affected by production trends and consumption patterns is the status of Federal Milk Marketing Orders. Order 2, which is the biggest in the Northeast, has dropped in its annual milk output by nearly one billion pounds. Class I utilization has declined in recent years from 53.9 per cent in 1968 to 49 per cent now. Member producers in Order 2 have dropped from 23,000 in 1971 to 19,000 this year. Similar trends have emerged in other Federal Orders in the Northeast, with the exception of Federal Order 4, which has gained a few dozen producers since 1971.

The decline in membership for Order 2 is of concern to a number of dairy industry officials since a lower than 50 per cent representation of dairymen will lead to the abolition of the Order. Smith pointed out the strength of the dairy inductry in the Northeast by mentioning that 18 to 20 per cent of all the milk in the United States is produced there. An average of 60 per cent of that production goes for fluid purposes, while the remaining 40 per cent is designated for manufacturing use.

Now is the time

However, some folks do get anxious and actually get on their fields before they are sufficiently dry. This is far more serious with heavy equipment than with horse-drawn equipment. Heavy clay-type soil should be given more time to dry that lighter soils, or with sand or gravel-type soils. When the soil is worked too wet at this time of the year, it may not get frozen, and the physical structure will become hard and clumpy for the entire season. It is important to get some crops into the ground just as soon as possible; such as Spring oats, aerly potatois and alfalfa seedings; however, this should not be done in wet ground.

TO FOLLOW THE LABEL

There are many practices included in a good spray program; one of the most important is to read and follow the label on the container; this is a "must" if the grower is to be successful and produce a quality product. All pesticide materials are registered and carry a label with full instructions. These should be followed for best results. The idea of applying a bit more than suggested is to be discouraged, because it is a waste of material and could result in a higher residue in a given length of time. Take time to read the label and then follow the instructions accurately.

TO MARK WET SPOTS

To those farmers who have wet areas in their crop or pasture fields and plant to do something about it later in the year, we suggest that the areas be staked out at this time. Some of these wet spots may dry up during the Summer and be difficult to locate. When installing drain pipe or tile, it is important to know the exact location of the main source of trouble. Wet ground is not very productive and usually some type of under-ground drainage system will improve the productivity of the area and pay for the system. The removal of this excess water to a nearby stream or ditch is possible in most cases and is worthy of consideration at this time.

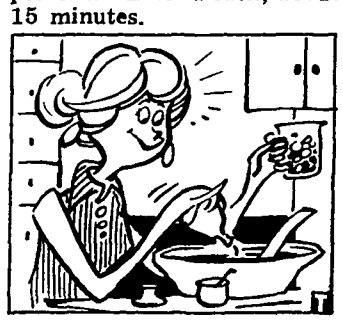
COOKING Brilliantly
TIPS FROM THE TOP

Helpful Ideas From Leading Holiday Inn Food Specialists

Hot dogs can look really top dog if you split them lengthwise, place a strip of sharp cheese in the cut and wrap each with a slice of bacon, secured with wooden picks. Broil on a rack, about 15 minutes.



For a more flavorful salad, put the dressing in the bottom of the salad bowl first, then add the ingredients that taste best marinated, (mushrooms, onions) put the greens on top and set the whole bowl in the refrigerator until just before you're ready to serve, then toss salad at the table

Cooked broccoli can have a tasty Italian accent if it's heated in a saucepan with olive oil and sprinkled with grated Parmesan cheese.

Vicon fertilizer spreader

The most accurate fertilizer spreader you can buy

The Vicon Spreader uses an exclusive fast-action spout moving back and forth at 540 times per minute to give even, rectangular coverage instead of the usual circular pattern.
That means increased profit because you get uniform fertilizer coverage, resulting in better stands and higher yields.

Give the Vicon fertilizer spreader a try. It costs no more than others. But it's better.

Le-Hi shows continued financial improvement

Le-Hi President Robert Barry

ALLENTOWN, Pa. -- Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers on Tuesday reported continued improvement in its financial position for the fiscal year ending January 31, 1977.

Robert P. Barry, president, told the annual meeting that results for the year show a bottom line loss of $276,501, primarily due to restructuring of loan agreements which favorably impacted operations. This compares to a loss of $1.8 million in fiscal 1975, and represents a dramatic improvement in the financial position of the Cooperative-the best in many years, Barry said.

Sales for the 630-member organization, the largest milk processing cooperative in Pennsylvania, reached a record $98.9 million, he reported.

Barry told the meeting that milk business at the Cooperative's Lansdale and Schuylkill Haven plants was profitable, representing a turn-around in operations from 1975. He said operations at the Allentown hard cheese plant showed significant improvement following termination of a contract with Kraftco and the signing of three major new customers for cheese products.

Lehigh's frozen dessert operations, however, suffered as a direct result of the concentration and effort successfully expended in turning around the milk and cheese business, Barry pointed out. He noted that introduction of the Dolly Madison Ice Cream product line encountered the most competitive market in the history of the ice cream business, with subsequent effect on profits.

"We do expect our frozen dessert business to be profitable in the coming year," he stated.

Barry said he has every confidence that several major steps taken in 1976 will bear fruit in fiscal 1977.

- An agreement was signed with Eskimo Pie Corp., putting Lehigh into large volume production of ice cream specialties and novelties for distribution under both labels.

- A $1 million plant improvement program was initiated aimed at increasing productivity and achieving significant operating cost efficiencies, especially in production of cultured products.

- Lehigh spearheaded formation of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA), an association of six cooperatives in Federal Order 4 organized to assure a market for excess milk and a fair price to farmers MAMMA will utilize Lehigh's cheese plant to process milk into barrel cheddar cheese and 40 pound block cheese for sale to the government and for commercial sale as well

- Eastern Milk Producers and Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative joined Lehigh as Limited Members, further adding to the supply of milk available at a stabilized price necessary for efficient and profitable operation.

- Penn Lea Company, owned jointly by Lehigh and Penn Maid, Inc., was formed to produce and market frozen yogurt for the first time in several eastern states. Acceptance of this new product thus far by retail outlets and consumers has been excellent, Barry reported.

- Negotiations to expand distribution of frozen dessert products to Florida have been initiated, with indications of successful completion in the near future.

Each of these steps, along with others in the planning stage, is fully expected to contribute toward profitalbe operations in 1977, Barry said.

At the meeting, the membership elected Roy W. Hetrick of Bernville as a director-at-large. New members of the Board of Directors elected buy two of the Cooperative's seven membership districts are Robert Gehman of Coopersburg, and Earl Reighard of Woodbury, Pa.

It was a full seven in a bed at the Lancaster Stockyards last Monday when over 2000 Easter lambs and goat kids were marketed at the Easter Sale.

specialist at Penn State University, this large number could be caused for two reasons. This year both the Protestant Easter and Orthodox Easter fall on the same date. Normally, animals would be held back to cater to the later holiday market. Horace Plank, a local commission agent for Walter M Dunlap and Sons, the major firm in the Lancaster Easter sale, said that he normally holds back as many as 500-600 animals if the Easter holidays fall on different dates

Morgan also noted that there is also a growing demand for the young lambs and goats during the holiday season

"Individuals of Mediterranean descent have always sought these animals but the demand seems to be growing. Possibly, this is because the markets are providing them with the lamb, and they are aware they can get it," he speculated.

So, farmers who would normally sell privately have now been drawn into the market because of the higher prices and increased demand.

While this year proved to be an overly abundant market, the fact is that the overall numbers of sheep, both around the Commonwealth and the nation, are steadily decreasing. In Pennsylvania the numbers dropped by four per cent.

"Sheep numbers have gone down continually since 1961," Morgan noted.

Various factors have led to the phenomenon. Morgan is convinced it is not because of a monetary reason He thinks, however, that cattlemen find less prestige in raising sheep than in raising beef. The situations in the range country are also hard to overcome where individuals must live on the range with as many as 2000 sheep. The Department of Interior is also cracking down on the number of the animals which can be grazed on federal lands. And, one other outstanding difficulty is coyotes Now protected to avoid their extinction, the wild animals are on the increase, and killing large numbers of sheep.

Easter sale averages for the most desirable kinds of Choice spring lambs, those weighing from 20-35 pounds were $.85-$1.15 around the state; 45-60 pounds .68-.90, 50-65 pounds .60-.80; and 70-85 pounds .55-.65

Goat kids ranged from $25 to $36 per head for milk fed kids weighing 20 pounds. Older, thin goats that lacked quality rated from $7.50-$14 per head.

Morgan, who has watched the trend of lamb prices each year, predicted the market will drop back to .60 per pound average as soon as the season is over. The price should continue to drop until June when the prices will be in the .40 bracket.

EASTER ISLAND
A CHILEAN DEPENDENCY IN THE PACIFIC OCEAN, IS NOTED FOR THE MORE THAN 600 STONE STATUES WHICH RANGE FROM 10' TO 37' TALL. ONE UNFINISHED STATUE IS 68' TALL. THREE DISTINCT CULTURES ARE IDENTIFIED ON THIS ISLAND. EXPERIMENTS BY NATIVES SHOWED THAT IT TOOK 180 PERSONS TO PULL A MEDIUM-SIZE STATUE OVER THE GROUND. A DUTCH ADMIRAL, JACOB ROGGEVEEN, WAS THE FIRST EUROPEAN TO FIND THIS 45-SQ. MI. ISLAND, (ON EASTER SUNDAY, 1722).
THERE ARE AN ESTIMATED 14,000 USES FOR SALT. LESS THAN 5% IS USED FOR SEASONING. U.S. PRODUCES OVER 40 MILLION METRIC TONS ANNUALLY.
TODAY, EASTER ISLAND, WHICH IS 2,400 MI. WEST OF CHILE, IS USED AS A STEPPING STONE FOR TRANS PACIFIC FLIGHTS.

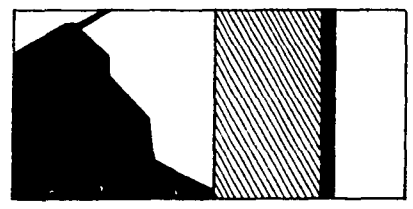
You're looking at money in the tank.

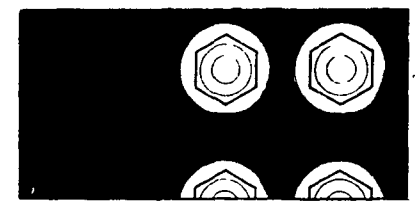
The nutrient content in manure will vary from farm to farm However, with proper storage, the value of NPK coming from the spreader will often test out to be worth 2 to 2½¢ per gallon

Because your Sealstor® Liquid Manure Control Center is filled and unloaded through the bottom, the protective crust that forms over the top is not disturbed This crust deters flies and odors and prevents oxidation Leaching is eliminated. The natural nutrients in the manure are preserved

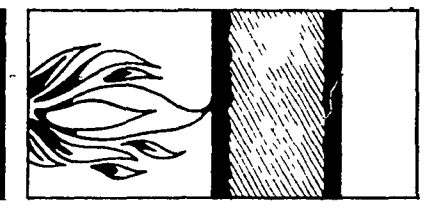
Every animal on your farm is a source of valuable NPK You can waste it through runoff, leaching and oxidation or you can Sealstor it in the tank, and put more money in the bank



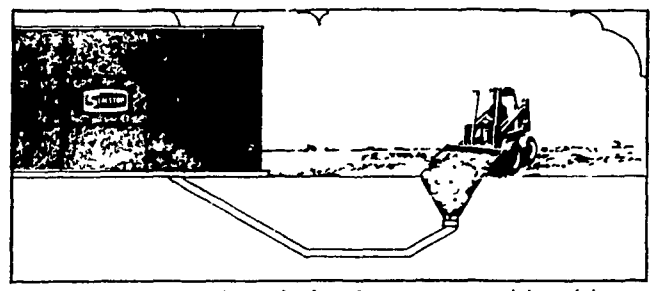
Glass, fused to heavy gauge steel, gives a smooth, nonporous surface resists rust, is imperious to acids and corrision



Sealstor double-bolt construction provides more strength along vertical seams More sealant assures a tighter structure



In our modern plant we have been manufacturing glass-fused-to-steel products for 27 years for industrial and on-farm use



Manure is scraped or drained to a ground-level hopper pumped underground and up through the bottom of your Sealstor Manure Control Center

SLURRYSTORE®

How to handle manure without handling manure

Never fails. Things always break on a day like this. First thing you know, you're knee-deep in it.

Bad scene. The Slurrystore system can put an end to it once and for all. Daily hauling is not only an offensive job, but dam inefficient use of the nutrients in manure. A better way is to store manure until you need manure.

It makes more sense to spread manure in volume when you really need it — like after the first cutting or in the fall to maximize results in spring crops.

The Slurrystore Manure Management System takes manure off your hands until you're ready to use manure. Take a few minutes and write for our free brochure — "Slurrystore — Manure Management".

Ukranian method of dying eggs known as pysanky

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

Easter is a time of tradition, and the tradition which is most common is that of dyeing eggs. One unique and beautiful way of decorating eggs is called "Pysanky," a Ukranian folk art over 10 centuries old.

According to Mrs. Donald Seith, 1648 Colonial Manor Drive, Lancaster, authentic pysanky are made with raw eggs, and must never be eaten.

Mrs. Seith said she became interested in pysanky through a friend in Ohio who taught her how to dye eggs in the Ukranian fashion. Since she first learned, she has been attracted to articles about the art, and has learned more of its history.

Lois said pysanky, dates from an era before Christanity and the eggs are associated with pagan rituals and superstitions. It was the Ukranian custom to give eggs to friends at Easter as special gifts. "Happy was the home that had a lot of pysanky given to it. They were assured a prosperous year and good health," she said. Pysanky were highly prized gifts and helped to ward off evil spirits.

Decorating the eggs also symbolized the rebirth of the earth after Winter, and bringing new hope, since Christianity, Mrs. Seith explains that the art has been incorporated into religious beliefs, and the decorated eggs now symbolize the rebirth of man.

Decorating the eggs was itself a ritual in a Ukranian household, and in any home it means assembling the proper tools and finding time. Mrs. Seith says one egg can take from four to five hours to complete.

Necessary materials for this folk art include a kistka, which is a metal cone attached to a wooden or plastic handle about five inches long. Beeswax flows through a tiny pin-sized hole in the pointed end of the metal cone. These holes can be different sizes depending upon the fineness of the line you wish to draw. A candle and dye are the other necessary tools.

Mrs. Seith said beeswax is used to draw on the design because it has a low melting point, and is easily used in a kistka.

Mrs. Seith explained that the designs are drawn on the egg after it has been sectioned off into geometrical divisions. Lines are drawn horizontally and vertically, in sections of equal size. Motifs, she said, can be in three basic forms - geometric, animal, and plant.

Geometric designs are similar to much primitive art. Often a belt encircling the egg is used to symbolize eternity. Plants are stylized, and have many meanings: pine trees symbolize youth and health, and the flower shows love and charity. Animal designs which do not appear often are also usually geometric in design. Reindeer and horses symbolize prosperity, and hens show fertility.

Today you can purchase suggested designs either in pysanky kits or separately, but in the Ukraine, forms and patterns were passed along from mother to daughter and became a prized heritage from one generation to another.

Ukranian women used natural dyes for the brilliant colors of pysanky, and because sources and "recipes" were hard to develop, the exact ingredients for specific dyes were often a secret. Today dyes can be purchased, and they really duplicate the vibrant colors of original pysanky.

Mrs Seith demonstrated the necessary steps to decorating pysanky She said none of the steps are difficult, but the total job is time consuming. The eggs are dyed a series of colors, beginnig with light and

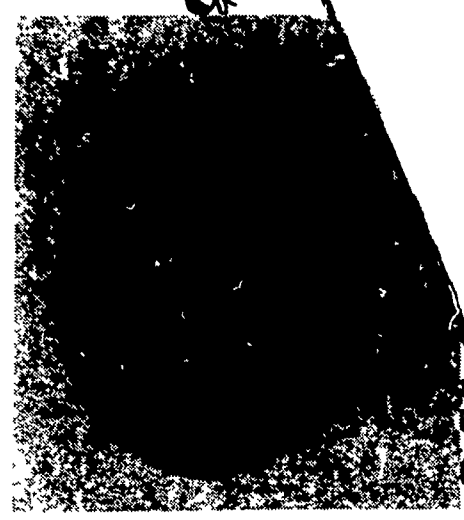
Mrs. Seith shows some of the large number of pysanky which she and her daughter have created over the years.



Mrs. Seith holds the finished egg next to the burning candle to melt the wax, so it can be wiped off. At this point, the completed pattern emerges.

ending with dark, the beeswax is used before each dye application to delineate the areas where the dye should not take, thus forming the design.

A basic design is drawn on the egg with the kistka filled with beeswax. To make the wax flow from the kistka, Mrs. Seith held it next to a burning candle. Sometimes she said she will draw the design first in pencil, then go over it with the kistka. The part of the egg covered with beeswax will remain white. Then the [illegible] yellow first next another design is drawn, this time marking that which will [illegible] Then orange dyes is used, and another design drawn on. Next red dye is used, and then another design and finally a black dye is used. Red or black is usually the final color in true pysanky. The number of colors and the order in which they are used may vary.

When all the dyeing is completed, the wax is removed by holding the egg close to the candle and then just wiping it off with paper toweling. Mrs. Seith said that sometimes you forget the earlier drawings you've made, so it is at this moment that you get the total picture, with the yellow, orange and red layers showing through.

Mrs. Seith suggests spraying the final finished egg with a glaze. "This helps preserve them so they don't crack." She also suggests storing the eggs in a room which has a constant temperature, and says, "They will last indefinitely." She has some eggs which are five years old.

When asked why she uses a raw egg, she said she does it to the pansky "original." She said she has lost very few eggs, although occasionally one will leak, or will get broken in storage. Some people put a pin prick in one end to help gasses escape, she said, but eventually any egg will dry out on its own. For those who are timid about working with a raw egg, she says the shells can be blown out and the holes covered with the beeswax used in the decorating process.

Mrs. Seith said she likes to use jumbo eggs, but says, "any kind of egg can be used. It is better if the egg has not been washed commercially because sometimes it won't take dye properly." She added that one of the superstitions of the pysanky is that the first egg a hen lays is the best to use.

Mrs. Seith, whose mother was born in Poland, says she enjoys the craft because it gives her a chance to work at a craft from her heritage. She said pysanky was not made in her home, but she remembers seeing the beautiful eggs as a child and wondering how they were made.

She said many Ukranian people still adhere to the custom, and there has been a revival among Ukranian settlements, particularly in the mid-west. The art stopped completely during the second World War because of the shortage of eggs, but otherwise has continued, and gains in popularity.

Mrs. Seith, who lived on a Wisconsin dairy farm with her parents until fourth grade, has lived in Lancaster for six years. She said she enjoys doing things with her hands, and about once or twice a year gives a demonstration of pysanky. She also does crewel embroidery and sews for herself. She has two daughters, Linda, 20, and Laurie, 15, both of whom have learned to decorate pysanky from their mother. The Seiths have a son, David, 18.

Mrs. Seith formerly worked as a teacher, and is now a teacher's aide in kindergarten and fifth grade.

One of the most popular legends about pysanky according to Mrs. Seith that a poor peddler was on his way to market to sell a basket of eggs and came upon a crowd which was mocking a man carrying a cross. The peddlar set his basket down on the road and helped the man carry the cross. The man, of course, was Jesus; the peddlar, Simon. It is said that when Simon returned to his basket he discovered the beautifully decorated eggs, the first pysanky.

Another long-held superstitution about the pysanky is that somewhere there is a monster chained to a huge cliff, and his servants count the number of pysanky in the world. If few eggs are made, he can break his chain and cause much evil in the world. However, if many pysanky are made, his chains will tighten and there will be little evil. Mrs. Seith said the superstition says that if the custom of pysanky comes to an end, the monster will break his chains and destroy the world.

The Ukranians also dyed hard cooked eggs, as we do today, Mrs. Seith said. These are called Krashanky, but even these have legends attached to the custom. The shells of the eggs are saved and used in he fields to protect the croops.under beehives to provide an abundace of honey or under thatched roofs to turn away high words.

Mrs. Seith also points out that pysanky can be purchased, already designed and colored, and can cost from several dollars per egg to six dollars.

Perhaps this story of pysanky will help give your colored Easter eggs some special meaning this year - and inspire you to create yor own pysnky for a special tradition next year.

Last call sounded for recipes

LITITZ, Pa. -- The American Agri-Women are having a last call for recipes for their "American Agri-Women Cookbook."

Individuals wishing to participate are to send two or more recipes typed or handwritten on a white sheet of paper size six-by-nine inches -- no larger or smaller. Both sides of the paper may be used, but only one recipe should be printed to a sheet of paper.

The cookbook committee is asking its contributors to use tried and tested recipes, and to have the ingredients listed in two columns at the top of the page. Following this should be mixing instructions. They are also asking for the size of the pan, oven temperatures, and the times for baking and cooking. The recipe should be concluded with the contributor's name and address.

The deadline for submitting recipes is April 16. Send them to: Naomi Spahr, Lititz R6, 17543.

AFBF probing for more trade

GENEVA, Switzerland—A group of state Farm Bureau officials here on what they term a "Trade Expansion Mission" have found high government doors opened wide to them. The timing of their tour coincides with the celebration of the 20th Anniversary of the founding of the European Economic Community and the actual week when the Community is dealing with renegotiations of price levels for major farm commodities.

"We're here as highly interested observers," said Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation and leader of the group. "We're not here to make demands or to interfere what-so-ever with the operation of the EEC. We are here to support the equal consideration of agriculture with industry in the current "Tokyo Round" of these GATT talks and to convey the firm message to the entire international trading community that U.S. farmers remain dedicated to a market-oriented system," Grant said. He added the farm group was "making certain that European and U.S. officials in major trade capitals understand Farm Bureau's policies regarding the expansion of mutually advantageous trade and that this trade should be conducted on a commercial basis."

The purpose of the 10-day series of conferences with EC leaders was to pave the way toward mutually beneficial trade policies between the U.S. and the European Community. The group hopes its meetings will lead to the reduction of trade restrictions and barriers, especially the variable import levies now imposed by the EC which hamper the free flow of agricultural commodities exported by the United States.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

What a backbreaking job gardening is! Strawberries must be weeded, flowers transplanted, and seeds planted. Everything is on ground level and it seems as though we haven't lessened the labor in this area for hundreds of years. I and my trowel and trusty hoe are all that stand between a clean garden and a weedy one.

Now kitchens are somethig else. They really have changed and have lightened women's work. When we moved on this farm some 20 years ago, I had to walk down to the far corner of the yard where the pump was located. After I pumped a bucket of water, I carried it up the hill, heated it on a wood stove and then washed the dishes, diapers or whatever. Now hot water is mine in an instant (if the furnace doesn't breakdown).

There is a garbage disposal in the sink and no need to run outside in nasty weather to toss the peels over the back fence. There is a specially built "baking center" with everthing within easy reach. There is a hood over the stove to keep the kitchen odorless and cleaner. There is a built-in dishwasher--what more could you ask?

Come to think of it - with everything under finger tip control in the house, maybe it is best to have to really exercise while doing the outside work. The Egyptian onions are ready to pull and eat; last year's parsley, which I covered,is beautiful and tall; and some parsnips are ready to be dug.

It is in the Spring, Summer and Fall that I really appreciate the conveniences, because then I am so busy outside the house.

White House eggroll to use 'real thing'

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Plastic spheres (sometimes referred to as plastic eggs) will not be on the White House Easter Eggroll this year thanks to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, the American Egg Board, and the Georgia Egg Commission.

A shipment of real eggs was delivered to the White House on April 6 with Amy Carter scheduled to appear for pictures.

James Fleming, United Egg Producers vice president for governmental relations, said the plastic spheres were used last year and generated considerable publicity. Egg producers took exception to the traditional event using anything less than "the real thing." The American Egg Board agreed to sponsor the affair, and the Georgia Egg Commission agreed to supply the eggs. So, last Wednesday at 4:45 p.m. real eggs again returned to the White House eggroll.

COMMUNICATION IS A TWO SIDED EFFORT

If you're experincing the heartache of family breakdown or parent-child conflicts, chances are there is a lack of good communication.

Communication is more than just the exchange of words between people. It is what we say, how we say it, and when we say it. It can also be what we do not say.

Communication is facial expression–the smile, the frown, the raised eyebrow. It is our body action–the clenched fist, the finger drumming, the shrugged shoulders.

We communicate to exchange ideas, gain knowledge, understand others, reduce tensions, make friends, solcr problems, and express our feelings.

Communication only exists when a message is sent and is received. Therefore, we must learn to be a sender as well as a receiver in order to communicate effectively.

Often there are reasons we don't communicate effectively:

If we listen only with our ears, we may miss the emotion behind the words. It is not only the words but how they are said that determine the message.

Jumping to conclusions lets us hear what we want to hear. This is usually what is agreeable to us.

Reasoning and facts can't penetrate a closed mind. Is your mind already made up?

"You" is as important as"I". Self-centeredness blocks our interest in others

Snap judgments result from looking only at outward appearances. If we put people in categories, we may not hear what they say.

The message may not get through to us because we're not concentrating or we don't understand it. We can also be so busy thinking of a response that we don't hear the message.

With patience, concern, and practice we can learn to improve our skills in communicating with others. First, we must realize that people are different but have similar needs for affection, safety, respect, and self-esteem.

We need to remember that communication is the total message of our words and our body actions.

Negative feelings such as anger, fear, and jealousy must be dealt with as well as positive feelings of joy, love, and happiness.

Giving of ourselves allows us to better understand the feelings of others and get to the real problem.

Finally, let the sender know his or her message is being received.

SELECTING CHILDREN'S BOOKS

Have you taken a good look at the books your children are reading? Are they what you want them to read?

Children and books belong together, but many people try to make money writing for children and give little thought to helping a child develop through good literature.

Stereotyping of characters, racial sensitivity, vulgarity, and occasional nudity are common reasons parents cite for keeping certain books from their children while they are young.

I would like to suggest studying the books you select to be used by or with your children. Believe in what you select and be prepared to deal with questions they may ask.

It is difficult to write good literature when the vocabulary is limited to the range of a beginning reader. Controlled vocabulary books are designed as teaching aids for those children who are unable to read successfully.

They are acceptable, but should be used along with good literature that may may have to be read to the child.

The feel and appearance of a book is important to a child. Opponents of paperbacks fear the benefit of their reduced cost is overridden by their lack of aesthetic qualities.

Paperbacks also are easily damaged and children may develop a careless attitude about the care of their books as a result. However, if the style and spirit of good literature is found in paperbacks and they are more affordable for your child than hardcovers, then their purchase is acceptable.

Soil tests set record

UNIVERSITY park, Pa. – A new record was established March 21 when Penn State University's soil testing laboratory processed 2,300 soil samples, surpassing the previous record of 1,900 set on March 19, 1976.

"The testing service, now 26 years old, normally processes 70,000 soil samples each year," said Dr. W. Wayne Hinish, professor of agronomy Extension. "A standard test consists of pH, lime requirement, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, and magnesium."

Robert J. Thomas, laboratory supervisor, points out that during this psst March, 19.00 samples were processed, or a sample every two minutes.

Only 1,500 samples were tested in February, primarily due to the extremely cold weather and frozen soil.

Two Easter Favorites

Although recipes for Easter egg candy weren't actually called for, "Home on the Range" did receive one which begins this week's gathering of selections. Says Mrs. James Coombs, who sent in several different types of foods, "Dear fellow cooks, Happy Spring and Happy Easter! Throughout the years, I have used several egg and ham recipes, depending on the hour of the day family and friends were "dropping in." Eggs St. Denis is a favorite when church friends drop by for brunch. Hope you can use my offering." Perhaps this Easter, Mrs. Coombs' recipe will come in handy, as will the many others.

HOMEMADE EASTER EGG

1 pound confectioners sugar
7 ounces shredded coconut
2 eggs whites

Mix the above ingredients together. Shape this mixture into one large egg or any size you wish and place on wax paper. In double boiler melt six ounces semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Spread the melted morsels on your egg or eggs. Put in refrigerator until the chocolate is hard.

Mrs. Alvin Horning
Penn Yan, New York

EASTER OMELET

3 4 cup finely chopped cooked ham
1-½ teaspoons brown sugar
1-½ teaspoons chopped chives
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
4 eggs
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
dash pepper
1 tablespoon butter

Combine ham, brown sugar, chives and mustard; set aside. Mix eggs, water, salt and pepper with fork. Heat butter in 10-inch omelet pan or skillet until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in omelet mixture; mixture should set at once. With pancake turner, carefully draw cooked portions at edges toward center, so uncooked portions flow to bottom. Tilt skillet as it is necessary to hasten flow of uncooked eggs. Slide pan rapidly back and forth over heat to keep mixture in motion and sliding freely. While top is still moist and creamy-looking, spread ½ cup ham mixture on half of omelet. With pan cake turner fold omelet in half or roll, turning out onto platter with a quick flip of the wrist. Top with remaining ham mixture. Makes two servings.

EGGS ST. DENIS

¾ cup chopped lean ham
4 tablespoons chopped green onion
1 tablespoon chopped cooked liver
2 tablespoons chopped mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter
Dash white wine or lemon juice
6 eggs
6 slices toast
6 slices boiled ham
Salt and pepper to taste

Make sauce (1½ cups) by cooking chopped ham, green onion, liver, mushrooms in butter. Add wine or lemon juice. Break each egg into a saucer. Then slide eggs into deep grease (not too hot). Keep turning egg over with perforated turner to keep eggs round and to get whites to cover yolks. Fry only two to three at a time. Have slices of toasted, buttered bread ready. Place a slice of ham and an egg on each slice of toast. Pour sauce over. If preferred, instead of the above sauce cooked in butter, you can make a noux foundation (browning equal amounts of flour and butter), using green onions, mushrooms, green peppers and seasonings.

Gardners, Pa.

EGG AND HAM CROQUETTES

8 eggs
Salt and white pepper to taste
1 cup finely chopped or ground lean cooked ham
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 teaspoons finely chopped parsley
Fine bread crumbs

Scramble eight eggs in the usual way, seasoning to taste with salt and white pepper. When eggs just begin to set stir in one cup of finely chopped or ground cold lean cooked ham, one teaspoon of grated onion, two teaspoons of finely chopped parsley, mixing thoroughly. Remove from the heat, spread over a cold platter to cool and when quite cold, shape into croquettes, cones, or egg shapes. Roll in beaten seasoned egg, then in fine bread crumbs. Again in beaten egg and fine bread crumbs. Chill well. When ready to serve, place a few croquettes at a time in a wire basket, plunge it into hot deep, clear fat (375 to 390 degrees) and fry until delicately browned. Drain on single conversion of farmland today are the dam builders. Therefore, all agencies should be required to file their intentions with the Pennsylvania State Planning Board and show cause why a proposed facility or land use cannot be served in a non-agricultural area. Cost factors should be of minor consideration. In addition, a public hearing should be required in the community such taking is proposed prior to filing for Eminent Domain.

We in America should by now have become very conscious of the fact that all our natural resources are of a finite quantity. If not the gasoline and heating fuel crisis of a few years ago, then the nature gas crisis and the resultant closing of industrial plants very recently should have made us very mindful of the fact that the horn of plenty has a bottom.

Pennsylvania is a vast Commonwealth with a total land area of 28.8 million acres. However, only 8 million acres of this is currently being farmed. On a portion of this total, agriculture under present market conditions is only marginally economically feasible. This represents 25 per cent of the total land area in agriculture leaving 75 per cent available for other uses.

Certainly with such a large portion of our state being non-agricultural, we can be more discreet in siting non-agricultural related land uses.

To cite some large non-agricultural uses of the land, permit me to cite a few that come to mind. Some are either constructed, under construction or proposed, but all are large users of land. Muddy Creek Dam in Lancaster County, Blue March Dam in Berks County. Also in Berks, the proposed Mill Creek Power Plant and Reservoir near Hamburg, 5000 to 6000 acrs, in Schuylkill County, the proposed Red Creek Reservoir, in Lehigh County, the Beltsville and Trexler Dams.

Along with these dams are attracted other non-agricultural land uses. Residential, commercial and industrial development follows.

I have attended all land use meetings in Berks County and have yet to hear any speaker mention the biggest culprit, Eminent Domain. All too frequently a costs benefits factor is the deciding factor. However, who can place a cost benefits ratio on an unknown quality? Who will know the food needs a generation or two hence? Who can say that the recent trends worldwide toward droughts will not continue?

We have recklessly squandered our energy resources. Let us not, with the same abandon, squander our most finite resource, the land which furnishes us sustenance.

Let us be mindful that only 11 per cent of the land area of the world must support humanity now and in posterity.

Very Respectfully yours,
Harold R. Stoudt
Hamburg, Pa.

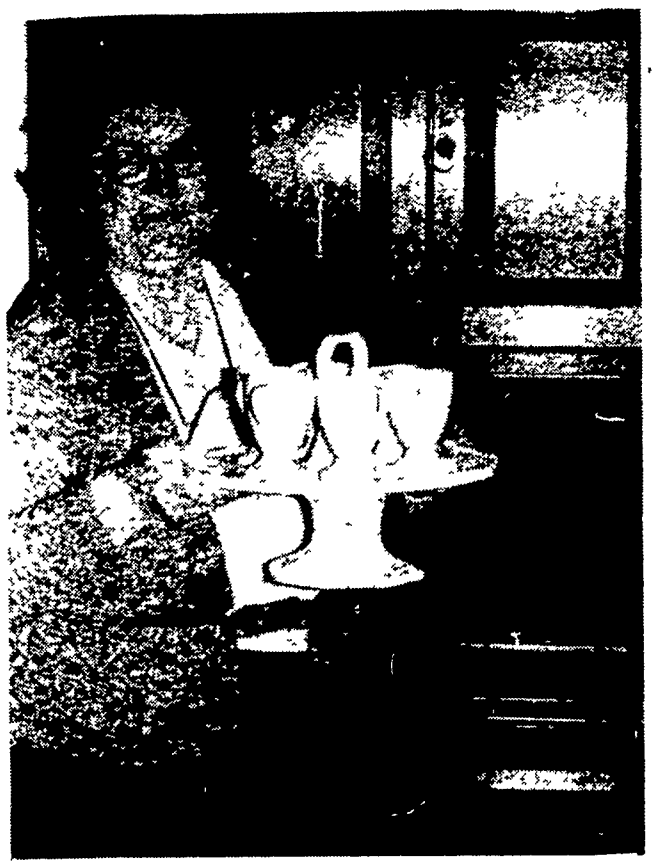
'Poor tenant house' teaches history through artifacts



Marian Reist shows a chocolate server, a family heirloom, standing in front of the restored cherry corner cupboard.

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

Editor's note: The subject of the following story is one of five homes which will be part of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association Heritage Trail tour to be held on April 20. For further information on the time and price of the tour, refer to the article dealing with that subject in this wee's Lancaster Farming.

LANCASTER, Pa.–For those interested in early Pennsylvania antiques, the Arthur Reist home, 1050 Eden Road, Lancaster, is a must on the Heritage Trail Tour.

Reist is modest in talking about his 99-year-old frame home, saying, "It is just a poor tenant house; no one will want to see it." While it may be a "poor tenant house," the Reists have done a lot of work to preserve its natural features, and the house, itself, is sure to attract a lot of attention on the tour.

Reist pointed out that the house cost just $800 when it was built in 1875 on a corner lot of the Reist property. There were tobacco beds in front of the house at that ime, partly because of the economical use of the land, and partly because Eden road was narrower in those days. The original Reist farm, located just up the road from Reist's is also the site of the third oldest tobacco shed in Lancaster County. Reist's father, Linn Reist, Sr., resides in the main farm house. Arthur is the fifth generation fo farm the acreage on Eden Road.

The Reists have lived in the "tenant" house for 25 years, and began fixing it up in 1956. In remodeling the home, Reist said, "We tried to keep it in the same basic style as it was when it was built." He related how he had tried to have a new window sash made, but wanted to preserve the wavy panes of old glass. He was told there was no guarantee the glass could be kept intact, so he worked and worked and restored the wood to its natural state–and saved the old glass.

All the doors and window frames are restored to their natural wood, and in getting to the original finish, Reist said, "I scraped and scraped until my fingers were bare."

Reist said he feels people often make a mistake in old houses by trying to mix contemporary architecture with older styles and the result is not complimentary. He said modern kitchens and bathrooms can easily be installed in old homes, but owners must be selective."

There is an addition built onto the original tenant house which added a kitchen and bathroom to the structure. The present kitchen was once a glassed-in porch which was expanded. Reist recalls that as a child he went out to the porch to the "icebox."

Even though Reist refers to his home as a "common house, it has some uncommon features, the most striking of which may be the family heirlooms and acquired antiques of the Reist family. Reist makes it clear that his family enjoys using the antiques they have, and are especially happy to be able to share some of the wide variety of early farm equipment he has collected over the years. One of the largest single users of his collection is Sperry-New Holland, whose agricultural exhibit utilizes much of his antique implements.

Explaining his interest in antiques, Reist said, 'I have always been interested in anything old; the older the better." His wife Marian said, "We used to have fun going to sales".

In the house visitors will notice the huge corner cupboard, made of cherry and restored to a lovely lustre. Mrs. Reist says, "It was in sad shape when we got it." In the living room,

Some antiques for the home: a folding yarn winder, and a very early "museum-piece" tape loom. Both are estimated to be over 200 years old.

A coverlet, dated 1858, is one of the prized possessions of the Reist family and will be on display during the Heritage trail tour.

'Poor tenant house'

too, there is a slant-typs chippendale desk for which the Reists still have the receipt. It belonged to Arthur's grandmother along with a needlepoint cushioned chair.

There is an 1830 painted ward robe presumed to be from southern Germany, and one of the few pieces of furniture which is not American.

Upstairs, Heritage Trail visitors will see two antique rope beds which are still used by the Reist sons, and which feature quilts sewn by the grandmothers on both sides of the family. In the same room is a schoolmaster's desk.

In the master bedroom there is a 150-year-old blanket chest, colorfully painted with a mixture of sour milk and pig's blood. There is also a walnut cradle, and the bed is covered with a coverlet "mate in Manheim" in 1858.

Reist explained that coverlets were often woven by itinerant weavers who wove the coverlets simply for a place to eat and a roof over their heads. They carried their looms on a one-horse wagon.

In daughter Christine's room a lovely "sunburst" quilt covers her bed. The quilt was made by Mrs. Reist's grandmother. All the quilts are in excellent condition.

But the house is not the only interest at the Reists' and visitors will want to venture to the outbuildings where some interesting farm equipment will be on display.

Walking around Reist's two-story barn is like taking a walk through Lancaster's agricultural history.

Along the way one learns about Conestoga wagon, weaving, early methods of cultivation as well as some local yore. For instance, Reist related that not many people realize that Milton Hershey went bankrupt twice before becoming rich. He told the story as he showed a hand made milk cooler which was used to cool milk that went to a dairy owned by Hershey on south Queen Street.

About his wide variety of farm tools, Reist says, "I don't refinish them, I just clean them up and leave them natural."

He said he determines the age of some of his items by reading. "I've done a lot of reading, and that's one reason why I've written my books. You don't learn it all in a few years. I'm interested in history, industrial arts and history, and it all goes together." In addition to farming his 60 acres, Reist teaches seventh grade history at Conestoga Valley and is a member of the Board of the Landis Valley Farm Museum.

Reist also noted that it's often difficult to know the origin of antiques, and warned, "There are some wonderful fakes. Even so-

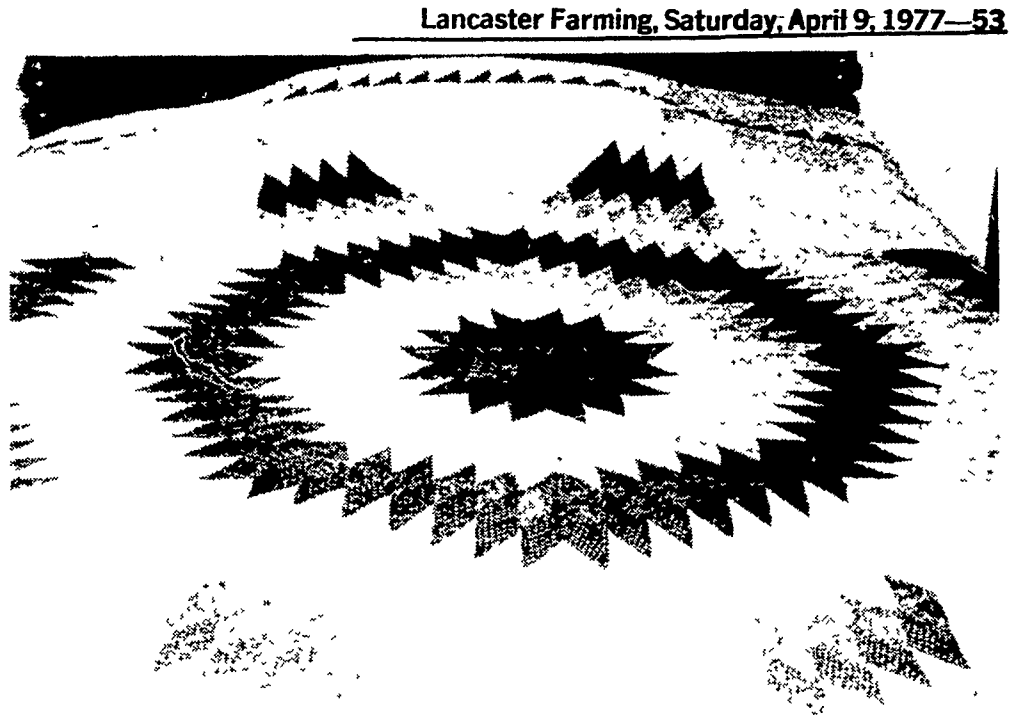
Reist said most of his equipment comes from Lancaster County, but he points out that many Lancaster County antiques left the county, first going West with early settlers who took Conestoga wagons, farm tools and furniture. Now, he said, antiques leave because of collectors from other areas.

On display will be his Conestoga wagon which saw many miles of use during the bicentennial year, and he also has an authentic bandwagon. "Jumping on the bandwagon" is an expression which as its origin in fact, and Riest has the wagon to prove it. He said the wagon was used for parades, church picnics, election celebrating and the like. His holds about 18 people. A surrey with a fringe on top and an antique fire hose carriage in excellent condition can also be seen.

Reist says he has seen a phenomenal increase in the amount of interest in antiques, and he attributes it to the fact that there are now "a lot of collectors." He also noted that "antiques are an investment." While stocks and bonds may not do so well, antiques always get better.

Reist knows that the first Reist, Peter, settled in Sun Hill in 1723, newly arrived from Switzerland. Marian is also of Swiss-German heritage. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graybill of Lititz. The Reist children are: Douglas, 24; Alfred and Arthur, 21; and Christine 10.

The Reist family is proud of its heritage, and visitors there will have the opportunity to share in the heritage as well as have a practical lesson in early agricultural methods in this county.



Christine's bedroom boasts a sunburst quilt made by Mrs. Reist's grandmother.

Values of new beef grades outlined

DENVER, COLO.--The new beef grading standards are tools which can definitely benefit cattlemen as well as the public, but the industry has made virtually no attempt in the past year to produce for the new standards. If the new system was used, the feeding industry would be producing about 10 million pounds less carcass beef each week, and the market certainly would be better.

These observations were made by W D.Farr, Greeley, Colo. chairman of the Beef Grading Committee of the American National Cattlemen's Assn., in a paper prepared for presentation at the 1977 ANCA Convention.

Discussing "How the Cattle Feeder Can Best Utilize the New Grading Standards," Farr said that a better future for feeders is tied in large measure to intelligent use of the new beef grading standards--including the modification of quality grades and the combining of yield grading (cutability grades) with quality grading.

He said that feeders will never know how effective the new standards are until the industry gets away from the over-fat cattle which it has produced for most of the past year Feeders must start to market shorter-fed cattle.

"Until we overdo the short side," he added, "the industry will not truly know what quality grade or yield grade number is acceptable to the consumers, retail chains and purveyors. All we have is opinions and guesses. We must get answers. The new beef grading standards are tools in the hands of the cattle feeder. I hope they sharpen them to a razor's edge."

Along with large liquidation of non-fed cattle, the market has had an oversupply of fed cattle most of the time since the new standards went into effect in February, 1976, Farr said. Figures on dressing percentages and higher average slaughter weights--in spite of more heifers in the slaughter

IH introduces fast parts programs

Farmers can get parts faster from their International Harvester dealers who are participating in special programs linking them to IH's parts distribution centers, according to IH.

The first program is called Stand By 7 and provides emergency parts and service to farmers on weekends.

The second enables dealers to locate and order a part directly using their own computer terminal.

Stand By 7 calls for the participating dealer to fall back on IH's network of 11 parts distribution centers (p.d.c.) should he not have it in stock on customer request. The program is in effect on weekends from now through June 19, for dealers throughout the Northeast.

In its simplest terms, the dealer will telephone IH's West Chicago P.D.C. in Illinois. Should the part be unavailable, IH says, the p.d.c. will locate it at one of IH's other distribution centers.

In the unlikely event the part is still not in inventory, IH will obtain it from the appropriate manufacturing plant or supplier.

Once secured, the part will be shipped to the dealer the fastest means possible. If necessary, it will be hand-carried on board an airplane and flown to the airport nearest the dealer.

"With Stand By 7, a farmer could be operating the following day where the part can be shipped immediately to the dealer," IH says. In any event, the fact that IH's resources are available on weekends assures the farmer prompt service aimed at getting him back into the fields quickly, IH asserts. Normally, IH support operations are closed on weekends.

In addition, the program calls for participating dealers to make arrangements to provide emergency service to customers.

IH's Stand By 7 Program is short for "standing by the customer seven days a week," IH explains. "When the farmer's time is valued at hundreds of dollars an hour during the planting season, the benefits of this support come clearly into focus," IH adds. Stand By 7 is also in effect during harvest.

Just announced is IH's new parts ordering and inquiry system for dealers equipped with computer terminals. The program is called DOLORIS. That's short for "Dealer on Line Ordering and Inquiry System."

With DOLORIS, according to IH, the dealership uses its own computer terminal to locate and order parts "quickly and efficiently" through any one of IH's 11 parts distribution centers in the country.

Pa. Farmers Union members urge price support legislation

WASHINGTON, D.C., - Fifteen Pennsylvania Farmers Union members were in Washington, D.C. last week meeting with members of Congress and Department of Agriculture officials to discuss farm income and price support legislation currently pending before the Congress.

Texas Congressman Jack Hightower, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, told the Farmers Union fly-in group at a luncheon meeting that Congress had the responsibility this year to write a farm program that would provide reasonable income safeguards for the nation's farm producers. Hightower urged the members to be comprehensive in their outlook, "if cotton is weak, the grain farmer must be concerned. Whenever one commodity is in trouble, all commodities are in trouble," the Congressman said.

Participating in the Farmers Union legislative fly-in were Albert Mellinger, Robert Spahr, Wilbur Keller, and Forney Longenecker, all from Lancaster County.

The members also heard Kathleen O'Reilly, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America, report that consumers are aware of the relationship between adequate family farm income and stable food supplies.

While in the Nation's Capitol, the Farmers Union members called on all of the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation as well as members of the House and Senate Agriculture, Budget and Appropriations committees. The members pointed out to the legislators the need for quick action to increase farm income this year as well as writing long-term farm legislation.

"We hope one result of this effort will be to raise the consciousness of members of Congress to the immediate needs in our farming areas. In addition, this experience will help the Farmers Union raise the awareness of their neighbors to the need for action back home," said Reuben Johnson, director of Legislative Services for National Farmers Union.

During the session, members were briefed on the farm proposals currently before Congress and Farmers Union attempts to have a 90 per cent of parity emergency loan bill enacted in time to affect 1977 crop production.

mix–show that most cattle have not been marketed on time.

"We feeders must accept responsibility for starting to utilize the new grading standards," he continued. "I know from personal experience that this is hard to do. The packer won't buy your cattle unless they are over-finished, so that he will get a higher yield. A higher yield of what? Almost entirely fat. Who wants fat? The consumers complain about it. The packer objects to the discount he has to take for Yield Grade 4's and 5's."

Farr said feeders must learn to realize how much they would affect total beef supplies if they tried to produce more YG 2's. They should use knowledge of when different breeds mature.

He went on to show figures indicating that percentages of Prime and Choice cattle had increased in 1976 while the Good grade decreased, reflecting grading changes. Also, an increase in percentage of beef graded reflects to some extent an acceptance of the new grades.

Farr noted that the packing industry has been structured on discounts, not premiums, and that it sells beef on averages. The need is to get a premium for a YG 2 just as there is a discount for a YG 4. Part of the problem, though is that feeders have not produced enough 2's so that packers could quote straight loads of Choice 2's.

Recently, Farr said at the time the paper was prepared, feeders were selling many cattle after 100 to 120 days on feed. He attributed part of this to the new standards, as well as weather.

The industry has had so many problems, he said, that most feeders have not seen an opportunity to help themselves by shorter feeding of cattle.

He said that the new, narrow Good grade could became the most attractive retail store grade, but nobody knows whether the public will accept it in volume. Feeders have not produced the Good 1's, 2's and 3's needed to find out. If they are produced, maybe packers will be smart enough to merchandise them.

Farr said that one goal should be to get to at least 40 per cent 1's and 2's in either Choice or Good grade. These kinds of cattle will be worth more and will cost less to produce.

He explained what could happen if weekly slaughter dropped back to an average of 700,000, if half of this were fed cattle, and if feeders reduced the feeding period to produce a large percentage of YG 2's. This would reduce live weights by 50 pounds per animal, and it would mean 30 pounds less per carcass. That amounts to 10.5 million pounds less carcass beef per week, or more than a half billion pounds less in a year.

If this were done, retailers and consumers would be getting a higher percentage of lean beef for their money, and cattlemen would enjoy a better market for their cattle.

India wasp joins fight against bean beetle

ANNAPOLIS, Md. – Just three years ago, Maryland farmers were spending $500,000 annually for pesticide foliar applications to protect their bean crops from the ravages of the voracious Mexican bean beetle. Last year, says the Maryland Department of Agriculture, these farmers maintained the same high level of production while reducing foliar application costs to approximately $50,000. This accomplishment is directly attributable to a highly successful biological pest control research program Federally funded and undertaken by the University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Now, says Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Young D. Hance, the results of that laboratory and field research are being applied in a continuing pest management program conducted jointly by the Maryland Department of Agriculture and Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, with the cooperation of the soybean growers.

The University's team of entomologists demonstrated that a tiny wasp, harmless to humans and bearing the tongue-twisting name, Pediobius foveolatus, could control the Mexican bean beetle quickly and dramatically. The insect, native to India, preys on the plant-eating beetle by depositing its eggs on the larva of the beetle. When the eggs hatch, the larva of the wasp destroys the beetle larva. This is one way by which nature can maintain an ecological balance.

Convinced that laboratory and field test results could be duplicated in a viable pest control program, the University enlisted the participation of MDA's Pest Management Section, which has now implemented such action. But, because the wasp, native to a tropical climate, cannot survive Maryland Winter (beetles do so by hibenating), NDA is currently maintaing colonies under greenhouse conditions. Later, at appropriate times during the growing season, the agency with the cooperation of county Extension agents, will tansfer colonies of the parasitical insects to farmers growing beans. And, once established in the fields, they will spread rapidly to infest and reduce the Mexican beetle population.

Describing the program as a "scientific breakthrough," Hance said that it holds great promise for Maryland's important soybean crop. Soybeans are the State's second most valuable field crop, with an estimated value of more than $46 million last year.

"Kick" up corn profits with Unipel® Starter Special 13-34-10.

This is the "corn-popper" special...the most imitated pop-up fertilizer on the market. As part of a Unipel corn fertility program, it suits perfectly the young corn plant's immediate craving for nutrients to develop a good root system, the starting point for top yields.

Yet, it's also a complete fertilizer with these key nutrients available in each Unipel pellet:

* quick-acting, non-volatile nitrate Nitrogen that starts working immediately, even in cool, wet, early-season soils;
* slow-acting ammonic Nitrogen that provides continued feeding through the growing season;
* both quick and slow acting Phosphorus to resist fixation, team with Nitrogen to become more efficient and feed plants for solid growth, help develop strong root systems;
* vital Potash to furnish young plants with building blocks for strong roots, tough and hardy stalks to resist weather and stress of pests and disease.

We can recommend to you the program details for a sound Unipel fertility program —which, on Starter alone, has returned over $30 an acre above fertilizer investment more than blend "bargain" programs.

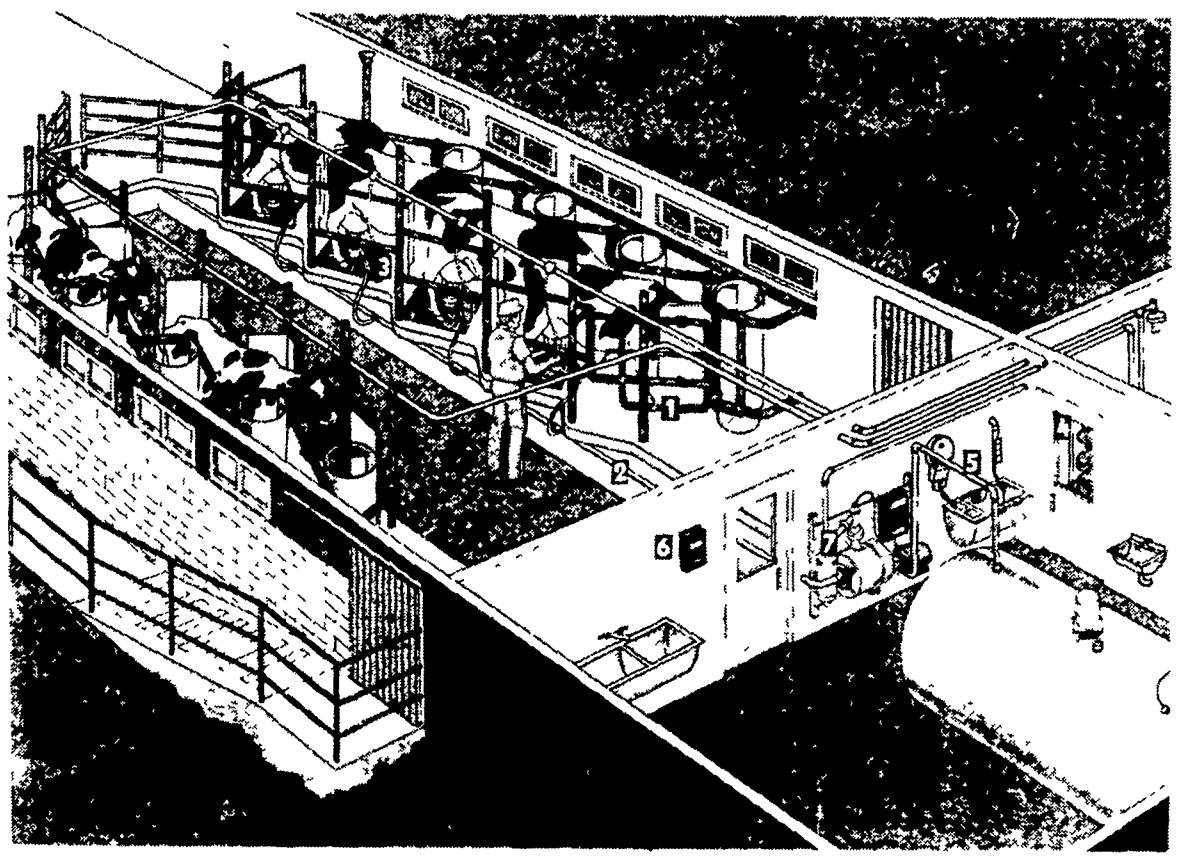
Step into a basic Surge Sawtooth Parlor and look around closely.



The Surge Sawtooth Parlor is designed for the man who likes to handle cows in groups. It minimizes operator travel and makes it easier to observe cow movement in and out of the parlor. Udders and milking units are also more easily observed.

1. Milking Stalls. Surge Sawtooth herringbone milking parlor stalls provide maximum access to the cow for preparation and milking.
2. Pipelines. Properly sized, welded pipelines mounted below the cow platform with adequate slope protect milk quality and flavor. They also contribute to a more stable milking vacuum at the teat end.
3. Milker Units. The Surge Mini-cup offers mobility, visibility and greater capacity than other claw-type units. Functional C.I.P. design for rapid milking and better sanitation.
4. Vacuum. Your Surge dealer considers the total vacuum system. Pump capacity, line size and vacuum controllers are coordinated to meet the specific needs of your milking system.
5. C.I.P. Cleaning. Your Surge dealer will analyze your water and recommend cleaning procedures and compounds consistent with local regulations and good sanitation practices.
6. Pulsation. An important consideration in obtaining fast milking action and proper teat massage is that the pulsation control, pulsators, shells and inflations be properly matched.
7. Milk Receiving Equipment. Surge Engineering arranges all milk handling and power equipment neatly on one stainless steel panel.

DEC BOU-MATIC
MILKING SYSTEMS
A product of Dairy Equipment Company

Junior CHAMP DETACHER

BOU-MATIC JUNIOR CHAMP DETACHER

A non-electric, air powered full arm detacher utilizing a fully sighted flow sensor that accurately monitors milk flow.

With development of gentle milkers and accurate flow sensors a milking machine take-off or detacher can reduce labor and drudgery of milking to make chore time much easier. Often it is the most efficient use of capital to free up one man to do more field work, etc.

In addition to saving, labor during milking has been eliminated. Cows are milked consistently regardless who is doing the milking. Bou-Matic detachers accurately sense milk flow, shut the vacuum off and then gently remove the milker unit.

Automating your parlor or flatbarn is a big decision but a forward looking decision. Automation can increase labor efficiency, improve udder health and make milking less of a chore.

TRIAL DEMONSTRATION
Every dairy barn is different-so is every herd of cows. There are also differences in milking management and habits.

The best place to evaluate detachers is in your dairy, so we will install a detacher in your dairy for you to try. No obligation, no cost.

ATTENTION CORN GROWERS!

It's corn planting time again, we have fine quality seed corn to offer this year If you pick and shell, we invite you to try 80-X or 790-A both are medium season If you like full season try PA-8703 or 861 Both did extremely well last year. 806 has been a well liked hybrid for many years. For silage we recommend 900 with lots of grain. Prices range, $19 - $23 in flats and rounds from $11 - $19 We give quantity discounts. We have been growing seed corn for 30 years. We also have oats, clover and alfalfa seeds. We also sell Atrazine Princep and other spray materials.

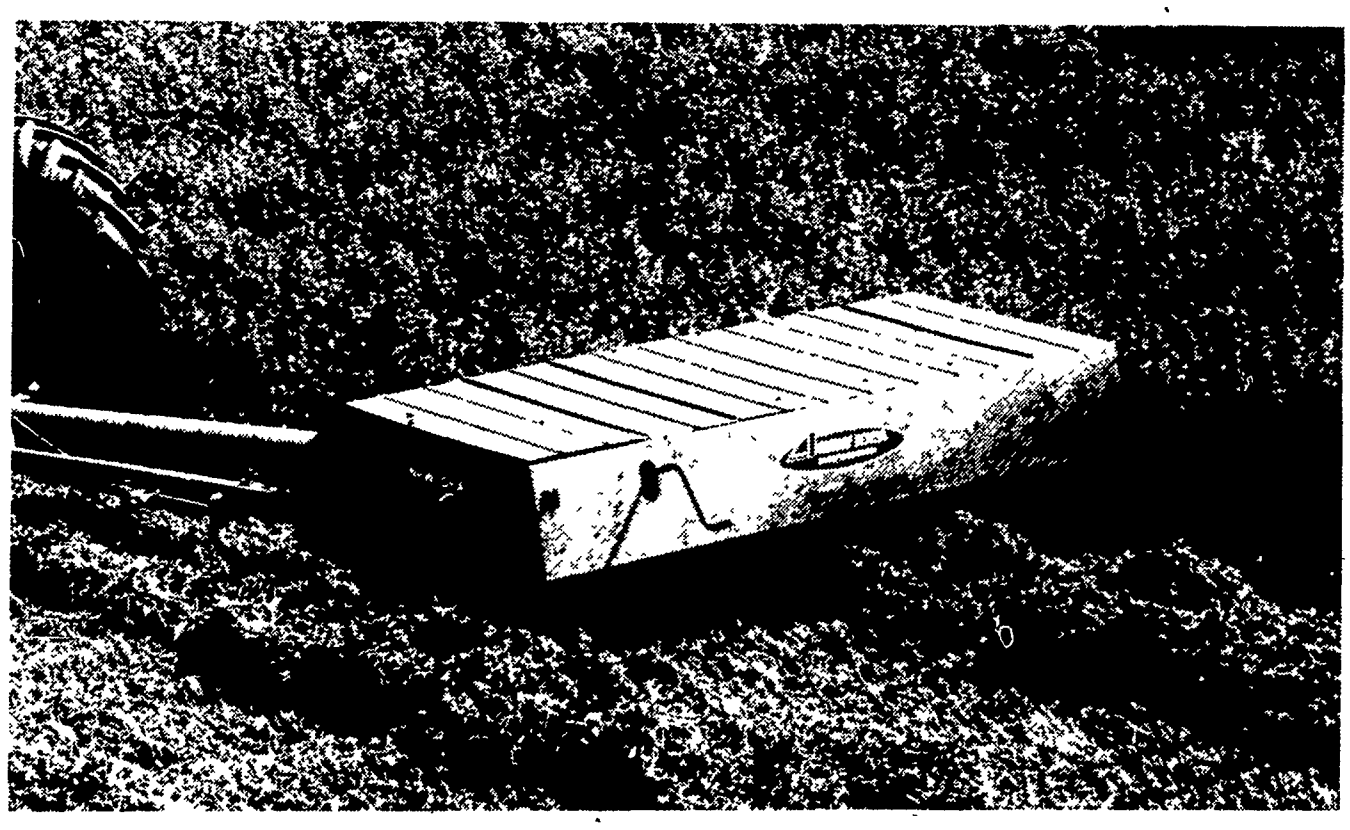
AGWAY



Start baling at 30% moisture! Cut field losses up to 1/3! Eliminate overheating in storage! Conserve more nutrient values!

The Agway ChemStor® program for baled hay and hay crop silage

It lets you harvest earlier and treat in the field to bring home, and conserve, more nutrients

Put more feed value in Using Agway ChemStor, you can start baling hay at 30% moisture. So there's less shattering. Protein-rich leaves hold on better and field losses can be cut up to one third. And with less time needed for drying down, there's less risk of weather damage.

Get more feed value out ChemStor stops the growth of microorganisms that produce moisture and heat. Moisture can cause molds... and spoiled hay. Too much heat can result in bound protein, which animals cannot use. In extreme cases, overheated hay can even reach the combustion point.

Not so with ChemStor. No more lost protein value. No more spoiled hay. In Agway Research tests, when 30% moisture hay was treated with 20 pounds of ChemStor per ton, no mold growth was evident when hay was removed from the mow after 130 days!

ChemStor—for silage Just as you might think, ChemStor can do the same remarkable job for hay crop silage and corn silage as it does for hay. Just treating the top 18" is usually enough to assure complete preservation in either horizontal or tower silos.

Everything you need With a reasonably priced Agway ExactaCase ChemStor Applicator and spray bar, you can quickly and easily convert your present equipment. Then start acid-preserving high-moisture forages, corn and grains whenever you wish. For details, call your Agway store or Enterprise Salesperson.

Runs off your tractor battery!

12V EXACTA CASE

- lets you acid treat high moisture grain and forages anywhere your tractor will go
- adaptable to treat corn as grain, ground ear corn, cob corn
- eliminates need for air-sealed storage or expensive drying
- ask Agway for details

☐ Yes, I am interested in improving my hay & grain quality. Please have an Agway sales person call on me.

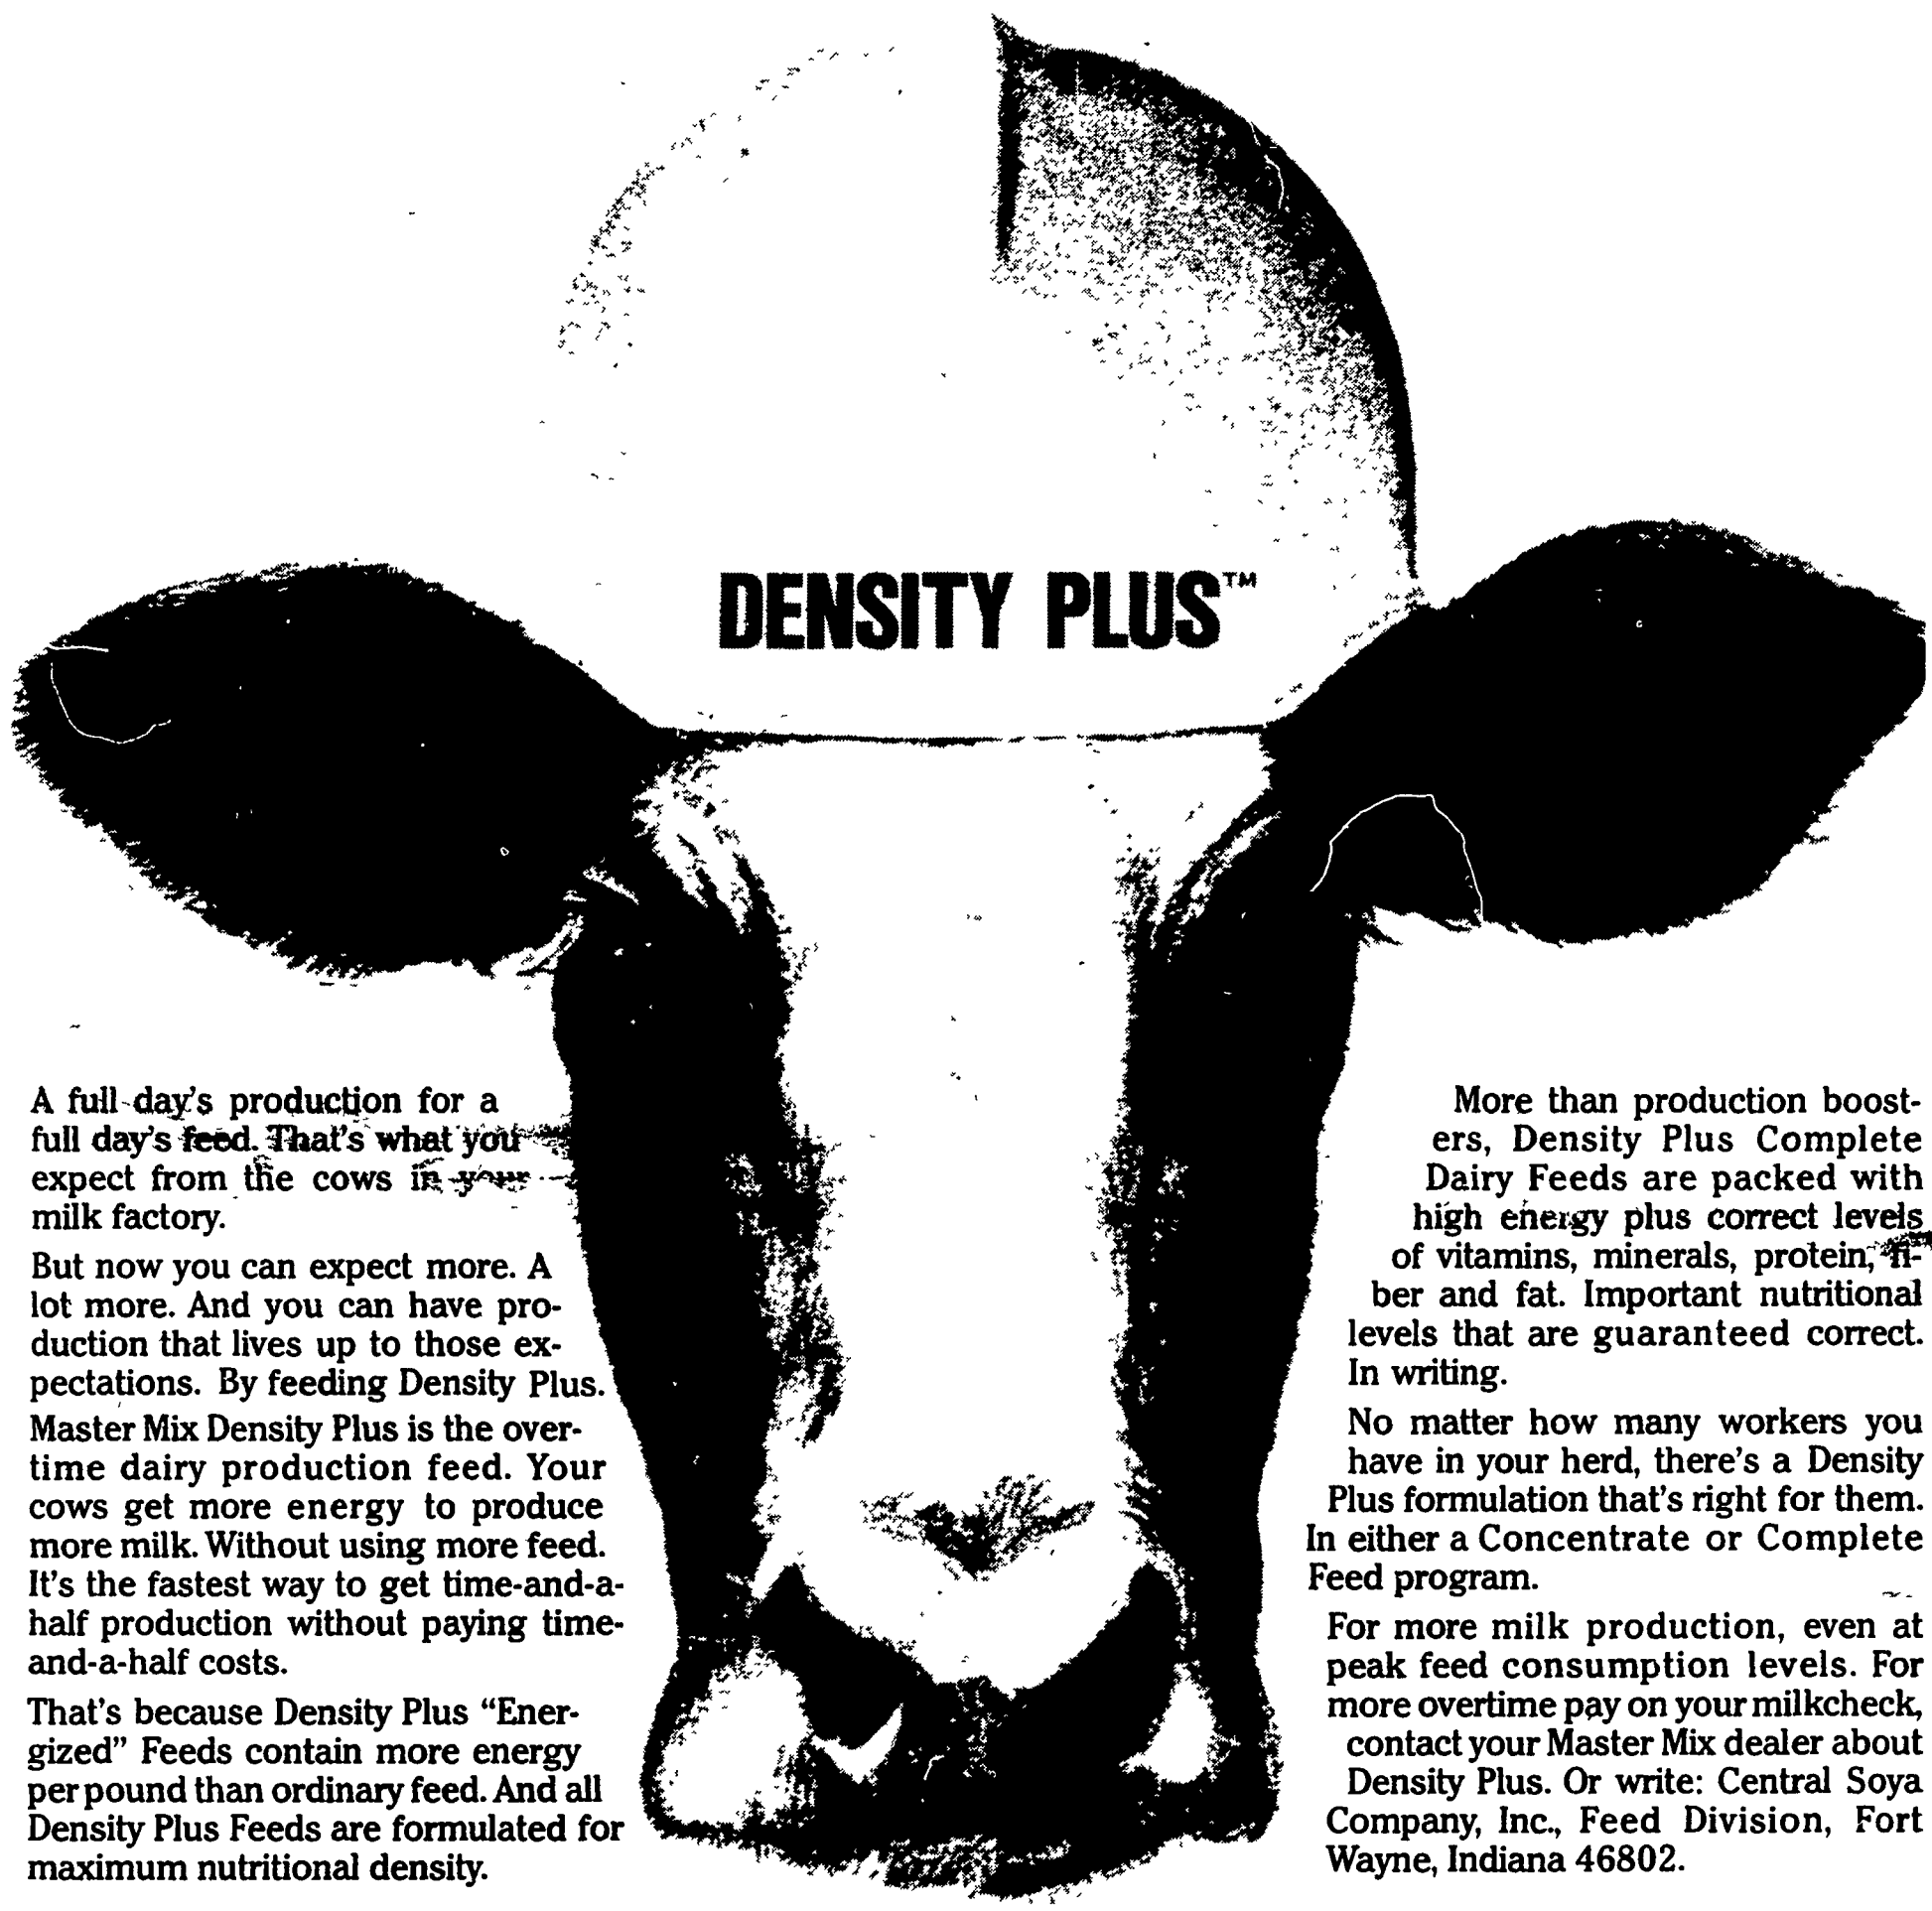
Keep your milk factory on overtime.



DENSITY PLUS™

A full day's production for a full day's feed. That's what you expect from the cows in your milk factory.

But now you can expect more. A lot more. And you can have production that lives up to those expectations. By feeding Density Plus.

Master Mix Density Plus is the overtime dairy production feed. Your cows get more energy to produce more milk. Without using more feed. It's the fastest way to get time-and-a-half production without paying time-and-a-half costs.

That's because Density Plus "Energized" Feeds contain more energy per pound than ordinary feed. And all Density Plus Feeds are formulated for maximum nutritional density.

Granular pesticides preferred

MARIETTA, Pa. - Last year Dave and Dwight Hess made two significant changes in applying their herbicides that they claim is faster, more efficient, and requires much less fuss. They are now applying granular herbicides and insuring their effectiveness through incorporation.

"In the past, we have used surface applied materials and usually had good control, however it is possible for control to slip when it is too dry after application," says Dwight, the younger of the two brothers. "We are particularly happy that we started incorporating this year since there was a dry spell after planting. Because of it, some farmers who used pre-emergence surface applied herbicides got caught with some early weed problems, but we got pretty good early control."

When a herbicide is applied before planting and incorporated, the net result is good weed control when it is needed most: at the time the crop starts growing. Incorporation adds the extra insurance that the chemical will be uniformly mixed into the soil at the right time and at the right depth for maximum performance.

"Weather conditions seem to play a big role in a herbicide's performance," notes Dwight. "Take wind for example: if it's windy at planting time - and it was real windy this year - it can hold up spraying or cause bad drifting problems. This is especially true in custom application where the spray booms are high off the ground. However, because of granular chemicals, we didn't have any problems with wind-drift this year," Dwight points out.

According to this young Lancaster County grower, granular applications are the most convenient way to go. During planting he can incorporate 20 acres before refilling the applicator boxes, and it only takes five minutes to refill. All you have to do is open the bag, pour it in the box, and go - no mixing to do, no water to haul, and no nozzle clogging problems. Maintainance is easier with a granular applicator too, especially clean-out. In fact, due to the ease of operation with this present set-up, the Hesses did some custom work for several area farmers.

The Hesses have a 14 foot Gandy applicator which mounts in front of a disc harrow for incorporation. This equipment, like many other applicators, is versatile and can be used for granular herbicide and insecticide applications as well as small grain seeding. Furthermore, it can be used in many different cropping situations since there is a granular herbicide program for most crops. Two such granular programs are used on the Hess farm - in corn and tomatoes.

The majority of the 225 acre farmland is planted in corn, much of which is double cropped with small grains, to be used as feed in their steer finishing operation. Due to the present high cost of cattle feed, the brothers strive for a high yield, so effective weed control is essential.

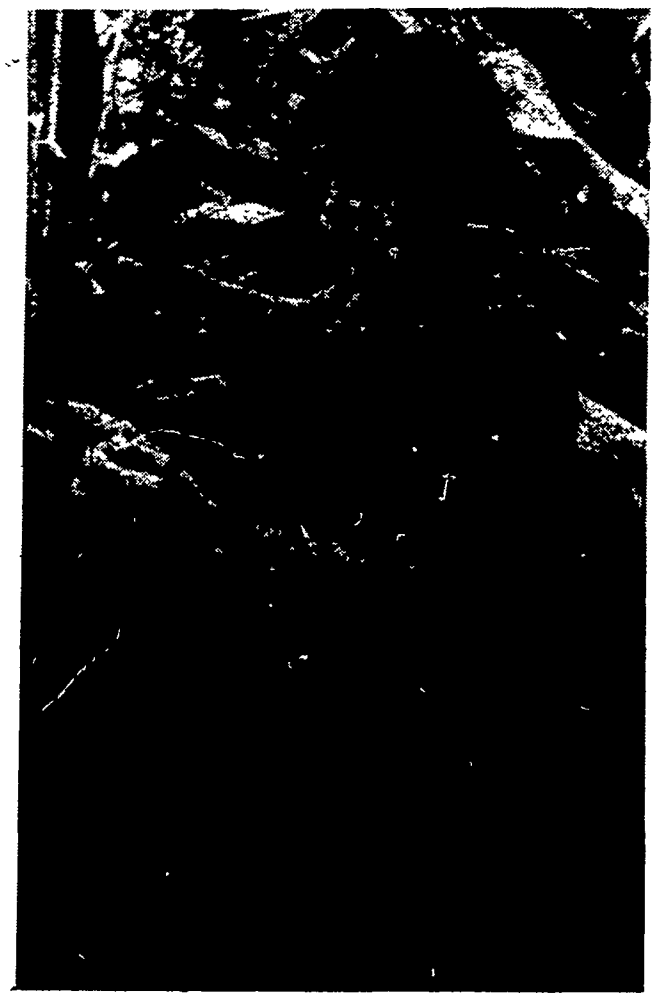
By incorporating granular herbicides, they aren't held up by weather variables as much at planting - and a timely planting is also essential if high yields are to be realized. In this regard, the brothers have streamlined many of their pre-planting operations.

"We like to fall chisel plow as much of our land as possible," Dwight explains. "We find this helps speed up planting; only the sod land is spring plowed. After plowing, all our land is disced twice, and on the second discing we are incorporating the herbicides."

A granular combination of Sutan with atrazine (18-6 G) was used for the first time this past year on the Hess farm. They used 17 pounds per acre, incorporated two inches deep - half the depth the disc to insure uniformity of incorporation and to finish the seed bed prior to planting.

Field preparation was similar for tomatoes. For weed control 40 pounds of Tillam 10-G was applied per acre pre-transplant and incorporated. "The Gandy showed its versatility in tomatoes," Dwight reports. "We also made an overlay treatment of granular Amiben, with the applicator mounted on the cultivator.

"We view this first year of using granulars as a learning experience," concludes Dwight, "we now know many of the dos and don'ts - like don't let the applicator get damp inside.



Dwight Hess of Marietta double crops corn with small grains to be used as feed in their steer finishing operation.

In the final analysis we are pleased with the granular program, we feel it's the way to go."

Swine research recommended

WASHINGTON, D.C. – A request for $2,000,000 in swine research funds and a national PRV (pseudorabies) control program was presented to members of Congress last month by the National Pork Producers Council Board of Directors.

Directors meeting here for their quarterly board meeting visited with members of Congress and USDA officials and asked for their support for supplementary funds to be added to USDA's 1978 fiscal budget which begins October 1, 1977.

The supplementary funds were requested for PRV research and control, TGE (transmissible gastroenteritis) research, pork nutritional research and residue monitoring studies.

If the Senate House Appropriations Conference Committee agrees on the matter, the funds will be made available immediately.

In addition, the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) has granted $60,000 for PRV research from its emergency contingency funds. The funds were granted one day after ARS officials met with the NPPC's board.

NPPC directors also urged their representatives to support on-going USDA swine research projects. They called for an inquiry into the Internal Revenue Service's position on investment credit for certain specific pork production units.

The National PRV control program presented to Congress was the eight-step plan adopted by NPPC delegates at the recent American Pork Congress. The plan would:

immediately activate in-depth research on skin testing and all other testing and diagnostic procedures necessary for control of PRV.

permit interstate shipment of feeder pigs only from those states where PRV is a reportable and quarantinable disease.

permit interstate movement of only those hogs going direct to slaughter or a slaughter market, or that have tested negative for pseudorabies within the previous 30 days.

design one standard uniform test and reporting procedure for PRV.

allow an anti-serum be produced and approved for interstate movement that will aid in reducing pig death loss in catastrophic outbreaks.

establish an accurate cost-risk-benefit ratio pertaining to the use of vaccines and their effect upon the future control of this disease.

develop a total program of positive actions to control the spread and to bring about the eventual eradication of PRV while protecting the economic rights and stability of the individual pork producers and the future of the nation's pork industry.

cause the USDA budget for fiscal year 1978 to be amended to add supplementary budget items to underwrite those costs of implementing the programs for the control of PRV.

Eastern milk producers rewarded for quality

BIRD-IN-HAND, Pa. -- Ten dairymen who market their milk through the Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative were given special recognition recently for producing milk with low bacteria counts. Money for the plaques -- which were presented to the four top quality producers -- came in part from Young's Minerals Company and Purina Feeds.

Receiving the highest recognition was Paul Lapp of Coatesville R2. Second high individual was Harvey Zimmerman of East Earl R1, followed by Abner Smucker of New Holland R3. In fourth place was Charles Wallace of Coatesville R2.

Those receiving certificates for quality production were: Levi King, Gordonville R1; Stephen Esh, Ronks R1; Amos Smoker, Gordonville R1; Elam Rehil, Gap R1; and Emanuael Zook, Gordonville R1. The award presentations took place during the recent annual meeting of the Pequea Valley local of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative. Forty-six members were present for the eveing dinner, held at the Bird-in-Hand Restaurant, here.

The following officers were elected: Wilmer Martin; presidnet; John Weaver, vice presidnet; Abner King, secretary; Leroy Martin, treasurer; Luke Zimmerman, delegate; Paul Lapp, alternate delegate; Charles Wallace, district delegate; and Freere Esbanshade, alternate district delegate.

Speakers for the evening included Lancaster County Extension Agent - Dairy, Alan Bair; and area marketing representative for Eastern, Freeburn Love.

Trail favored

HARRISBURG -- Rep. Noah W. Wenger, R-Lancaster, has announced that a measure to save the historic and scenic Appalachian Trail has been sent to the floor of the House from committee.

Winger said the bill was overwhelmingly voted out of the House Conservation Committee with an important change made from the original legislation.

The Lancaster County Republican, a member of the Conservation Committee, said he prepared and introduced the amendment to House Bill 3 to insure land acquired by the state to preserve the pathway does not infringe on valuable acreage of designated farmland.

Wenger said the Federal Government will match the amount of money the State decides to spend to save the trail from land developers and private land owners who are currently buying real estate adjacent to the 200-year old path.

PFA briefed on ag legislation

HARRISBURG, Pa. - Farmers from all over the state converged enmasse on Harrisburg Monday for the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association's annual Legislative Tour to the Capitol. Over 400 farm men and women attended the afternoon session. Legislators joined their rural constituents at the Penn Harris Motor Inn in Camp Hill for an evening banquet.

There are a large number of bills in the Senate and House to be considered by the General Assembly that would affect farming operations across the state. Five major issues were outlined by PFA's Director of Public Affairs, Chester Heim, to come up for possible action in the Senate.

Senate Bill I is a proposed amendment to the Pennsylvania Constitution which would provide for the election of the Attorney General. The position is presently an appointment slot.

"Sunset legislation" is what Senate Bill 2 is commonly termed. This proposal would require periodic review and expiration of all agencies to determine if they are accomplishing the purpose for which they were intended. Similar directives are found in Senate Bill 314 which would require the General Assembly to have periodic inspection and evaluation of the state's executive departments, agencies, and boards and commissions.

The above bills are all various committees, and are expected to come up for possible voting during the next few months. PFA is supporting these issues.

There are, however, two farm interest Senate proposals that the state-wide farmer's lobbyists are opposing. Both have to do with milk regulations. Senate Bills 172, 173 and 174 all speak to the issue of milk pricing and would authorize competitive bidding and selling to the lowest bidder for school milk purchases. This proposal would eliminate the Milk Marketing Board. Milk sanitation is tackled in Senate Bill 362 which would grant rights for milk sanitation inspection and labeling standards to local municipalities.

Several House Bills are also earmarked for farm monitoring as the legislative activity picks up speed. Especially crucial is House Bill 111 which deals with the hottest issue in the area at the moment, land condemnation. That bill would restrict the right to condemn land for highways or waste disposal facilities, and would provide for a committee to determine feasibility of an alternate site on less prime agriculture land.

Tied closely to recent federal law changes is House Bill 103, which would appraise agricultural and forest land based on use for state inheritance tax purposes. The Senate is expected to introduce a similar bill shortly. Another tax-related proposal is House Bill 236, affecting installment sales provisions. If enacted, this legislation would permit real and personal income taxes to be paid when monies are received on installment sales, rather than in one lump sum at initial agreement time.

Unless House Bill 630 is enacted before July 1, farmers will find themselves applying for permits for moving any piece of machinery on the open road that measures wider than ten feet. That bill would amend current legislation allowing oversized implements of husbandry to travel within a radius of 25 miles of the owner's farm without a permit.

House Bill 112 is another proposal that the Association is encouraging legislators to back. Under that bill, the Agriculture Department would be allowed to establish and regulate marketing and bargaining processes for farm producers.

Milk price boost 'far short'

Washington, D.C., – The dairy price support increase, announced March 22 by the Carter Administration, is "far short of what is needed but is a definite improvement over the existing figure or the levell advocated by the Council on Wage and Price Stability," Tony T. Dechant, president of National Farmers Union said.

Noting that manufacturing milk prices had declined almost $1 per hundred pounds since January a year ago and that the milk-feed price ratio has worsened by 15 per cent in that same time, Dechant said the stated increase of 74 cents per hundred pounds to $9.00 represents "slightly more than half of the increase needed to keep pace with rising costs and to keep dairying a viable industry."

"At the same time, the new figure is some improvement over the existing level of $8.26 (76 per cent of parity) or the $8.13 support level urged by the wage and price council," Dechant said.

Acknowledging that USDA said it would take another look at the situation in six months, Dechant said that would be too long a delay and indicated Farmers Union would continue to urge Congress to raise the statutory minimum to 90 per cent of parity or $9.67 per hundred pounds.

Dechant said he was pleased that USDA intends to remove the "cheese tilt", in the USDA buying levels so that producers of butter and nonfat dry milk would be treated with cheese processors.

Love wants embrace for cooperatives

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter

ONO, Pa. - Members of the Myerstown Local, Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative gathered at the Ono Fire Hall recently to listen to Freeburn Love, marketing representative of the cooperative.

Love reminded the concerned dairymen of the above normal increase in mild production now faced by all producers, and how important cooperatives are in finding markets for this milk. "Cooperatives need yor support," he told the dairymen. We have markets for your milk but they are becoming harder to find, the speaker continued. To combat this situation the cooperative has baken over the Middlebury Center processing plant for use in 'distress' situations. The plant may be in a poor geographic for hauling, but because of this the cooperative has been able to purchase the plant for a 'distress' price, Love informed the area producers. "The plant will insure an outlet for our milk." he explained.

The speaker also voiced concern over the federal governments move to increase the milk support price. "I'm afraid this move will come back to haunt us in the future," Love exclaimed. It will only compound the problems we are already facing, he added.

The government has substantial supplies of milk on hand now. They have two times as much cheese, three times as much powder, and more butter stockpiled than they did one year ago. Add this to the misconceptions in the recent news releases about the increases in the price of milk and our situation becomes next to impossible, Love told the local producers.

Another topic of concern, dealt with the USDA Grading Standards. "The grading standards are here to stay," Love stated. The cooperative should not tolerate any producer who won't produce top quality milk. Let them go to a manufacturer on their own, he continued.

Freeburn Love

Milk is a very perishable product and it is easy to produce milk that does not come up th standards. The market for this milk is very limited, the dairymen were reminded. The cooperative has a difficult time marketing top quality milk at this time as it is, the representative added. Producers were told they have a requirement to be in compliance with the USDA grading standards.

In closing, Love stressed the need for more adequate bonding for milk handlers. Love gave the dairymen an account of a dairy which recently went bankrupt. He pointed out how adequate bonding would have helped the situation more. Bonding would make our job easier, "I am glad to see Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board is backing legislation to that effect," Love concluded.

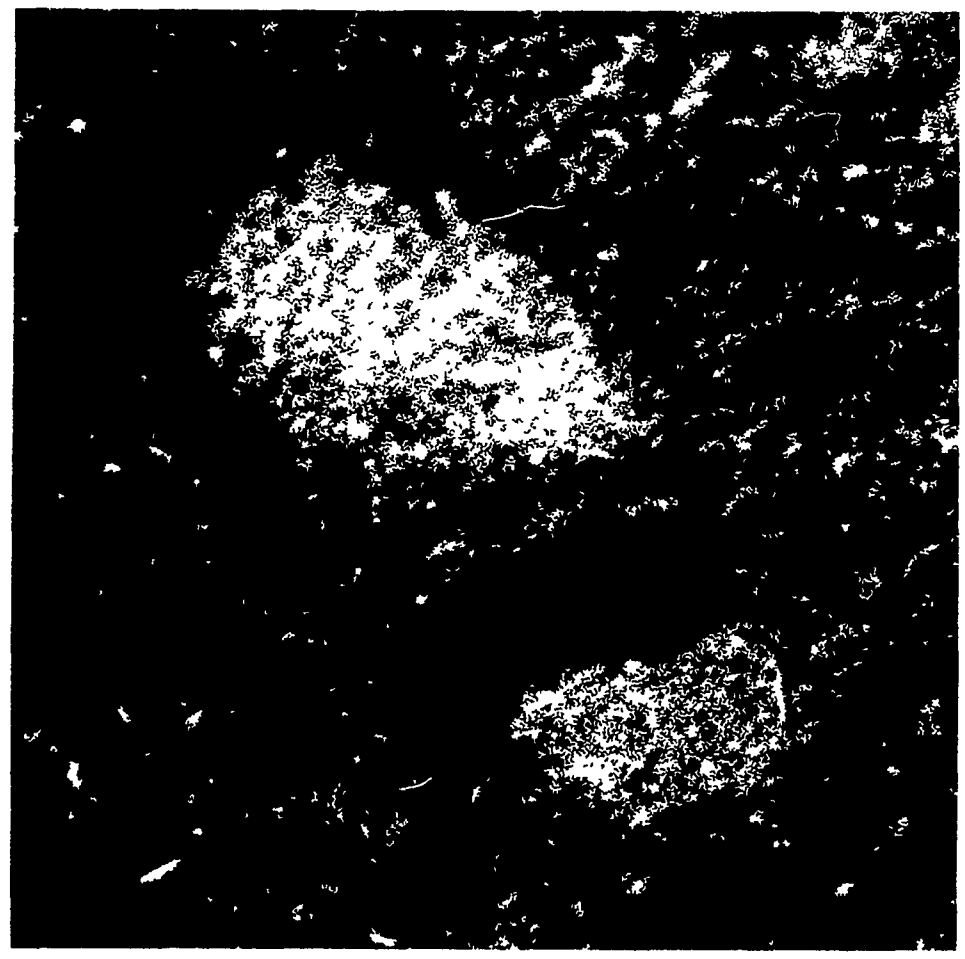
BANVEL®+LASSO®*

pre-emergence herbicide

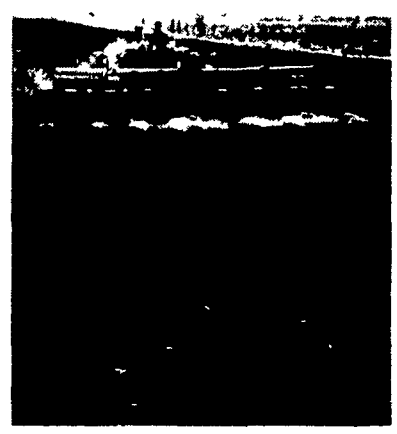


A giant step toward total weed control in corn.

EFFECTIVE CONTROL OF BROADLEAF AND GRASSY WEEDS WITHOUT CARRYOVER PROBLEMS

What degree of weed control will you settle for in your corn? Most of the thousands of growers we've talked with on the Banvel® "Hot Line" seem to expect at least 90 percent control. And, most of them have been getting it with the pre-emergence, post-plant application of Banvel® + Lasso® tank-mix.

An important advantage of this combination which growers appreciate is freedom from worry about carry-over, particularly following a year of droughty conditions.



HOW TO ACHIEVE 90% OR BETTER CONTROL ON LABELED WEEDS

Here are the most important steps to successful results with Banvel® + Lasso® tank-mix:

- Apply Banvel® + Lasso® strictly according to soil type and percent of organic matter. The Banvel® + Lasso® label spells it out for you.
- Incorporation is not only unnecessary, it is undesirable other than under extreme drought conditions, even then, incorporation should be no more than ½-inch
- If you apply Banvel® + Lasso® with liquid fertilizer, check compatibility of the liquids first by mixing proper proportions in a small container.
- Use the right kind of nozzles and screens The label is specific on this point
- This combination should not be used on any sandy textured soils.

*LASSO® is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company The Banvel® + Lasso® tank-mix is cleared for use in Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Wisconsin

Note: Before using any pesticide, read the label.

Plans announced for wool pool

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter

BOYERTOWN, Pa. – Mrs. Ian Mackay, secretary-treasurer of the Berks County Sheep and Wool Growers Association has announced plans for their annual wool pool.

The pool will be scheduled for early June at the Reading Fairgrounds. Anyone in Berks County or surrounding areas with no access to a wool pool are encouraged to join the pool. There is no limit to the amount of wool a person can bring, it can be one fleece or 1000. Mr.Mrs. Mackay told Lancaster Farming.

The pool is a non-profit farmers' cooperative run by 12 directors, primarily for the purpose of marketing wool. Anyone marketing wool through the pool automatically becomes a member, Mrs. Mackay said. Wool brought to the pool is weighed, graded, bagged and shipped to the buyer for a low fee to cover the handling costs. "The fee covers the cost of labor and trucking at the pool and any business transacted by the association in marketing the wool," Mrs. Mackay explained.

This year Mrs. Mackay is very optimistic about the prices they will get for the wool. "Last year for three-eighths and one-quarter staple we obtained 66 cents per pound," she said. "But his year on the Chicago Market wool has been about 15 cents higher, which is a very good indiction for us," Mackay continued.

We will know what price will sell the wool for later in April, Mackay remarked. On April 26th representatives from the board of directors will go to Penn State University to accept the highest bid offered for the wool. Last year the pool marketed 20,000 pounds of wool and had 164 people particicpate.

Mackay also announced that, the association will hold a meeting at the Berks County Agricultural Center on April 19th at 7:30 for anyone interested in the pool, or in sheep in general. David Kantner, Schuylkill County agent, is scheduled to speak on lamb carcass evaluation. A film on sheep and wool will also be shown. The association will also announce dates for sheep shering schools at the meting. Anyone interested can contact Mrs. Mackay at 215-367-6867 for any questions they may have.

NFU supports effort for wheat agreement

ST. PAUL, Minn. – Efforts by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to set up a wheat price agreement with Canada were praised as a "positive move for farmers" by Cy Carpenter, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union.

"Farmers have needed international grain agreements since the last ones expired in 1972," Carpenter said. "This move is long overdue."

The proposed agreement calls for the U.S. and Canada, who together supply 75 per cent of the world's exports of wheat, to set an export price, below which no wheat could be purchased from these two countries.

"For too long, grain traders and processing corporations have been running U.S. agricultural trade policy," Carpenter said. "I'm glad to see Secretary Bergland attempting to make pricing agreements with the farmer in mind."

pricing agreements would stabilize prices for farmers. He said that with about two-thirds of the total U.S. wheat crop going for export, steps must be taken to protect farmers on the world market.

Carpenter said, "The Farmers Union is in favor of expanding commodity agreements to other exporting countries, and including consuming countries in the pricing negotiations.

"If we could free farmers from being victimized by the sometimes up and usually down world market, they could be assured of a fair price for their product. At the same time, the effect on food prices for consumers would probably be minimal, because domestic prices would remain relatively stable."

Carpenter said he expects opposition to the plan from the U.S. grain trade.

'Incredible egg' featured at poultry banquet

NEW OXFORD, Pa. — "The problem with great egg dishes is that they are stuck with foreign names" said Howard Hemler, the World's Omelet King, as he described the incredible edible egg at the Twenty-Second Annual Adams County Poultry Banquet held in the Firehall at here.

"Souffle, omelets, crepes, kiche lorraine ... hard to pronounce but easy to make" said Hemler, an employee of the American Egg Board who performed a demonstration for the 120 persons attending the meeting. To emphasize the point that egg dishes are easy to prepare, Hemler called Mrs. Glenda Setter, Gettysburg R2, from the audience, blindfolded her and guided her through the preparation of a kiche lorraine.

"Anyone can prepare an omelete" continued Hemler who set the world's record during the 1976 Pennsylvania Farm Show. Start with a very hot pan, drop in butter and immediately add two eggs beaten together with to tablespoons of water. "Add your favorite filling on the left side, fold the right side over it and in 40 seconds it's ready to serve", concluded the speaker.

In the business meeting all incumbent officers were re-elected: Glenn Kime, Gardners R1, president; Donald Heckenluber, Biglerville R1, vice-president; Robert McMaster Gardners R1, secretary; and Roy Wetzel, Gettysburg R2, treasurer.

"The poultry industry is expanding in Adams County" said Kime who presided at the meeting. Cash receipts of $9.3 million from the sale of poultry in 1975 made this the second most valuable agricultural commodity we produce. Translated into satisfying consumer needs, we produce enough broilers to supply the annual consumption of 390,678 people and enough eggs to feed 291,062 persons. The Adams County Poultry Association served 6215 halves of barbecue chicken during 1976, sponsored a number of youth activities and promoted poultry products during the South Mountain Fair and the Farm-City Week, revealed Robert McMaster in his report as secretary. Treasurer Roy Wetzel's report indicated that funds raised by the Poultry Association were shared with several community orgainizations: $100 South Moutain Fair toward a new building; $676.72 to Upper Adams Jaycees and $713.69 Adams County Fruitgrowers as share of proceeds from barbecues; $750 to support 4-H youth programs; $125 for incorporating the Association; $150 to support the Queen Contest and $1726 for advertising and promotion.

"A five-cent-per-case assessment on all eggs produced, effective since September 1976, has provided $3.5 million to support research, and promotion" said Robert Park, of Pittsburgh, president, Pennsylvania Poultry Federation. He described an extensive program which is promoting eggs in twenty major markets during evening news broadcasts by the tree major television networks. Popular magazines directed to homemakers also feature egg promotion.

Over 750 pupils in the 5th and 6th grades in Adams County Schools have studies the marvel of life through a 4-H embryology project reported John Schwartz, County agent. He thanked the members of the Association for support throughout the year which included sending the 4-H poultry judging team to regional and nation contests and encouraged twelve youth to comple capon production projcets. Cashtown Lions Club's appreciation was also expressed for the sponsorhip of the Capon Round-up where in 1976 4-H'ers auctioned off 36 capons for a total of $686. Sherriff Bernard Miller's purchase of the grand champion at $9.00 per pound was the year's record for Pennsylvania, added Schwartz.

Arthur Schlappich wins Kutztown OYF award

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter

MOHRSVILLE, Pa. -- When Arthur Schlappich was asked why the Kutztown Young Farmers Association chose him as the Outstanding Young Farmer under 30, he din't have an answer. "I am just doing what I have always done since I took over the family farm," he said with a slight smile.

Schlappich was raised on the land he now farms. It has been in his family for five generations. encompassing well over 100 years. "Right now," Schlappich said proudly, "we have four generations living here under one roof."

The large stone house was built 170 years ago, LANCASTER FARMING was told. "There is a date stone upstairs that is marked 1807," the young farmer's wife, Liz, related.

Schlappich rents the home farm from his father, as well as some neighboring land. All totaled, he is farming about 300 acres and milking 50 cows. The cowas are mostly grade Holsteins. "We are working towards a totally registered herd however," said Schlappich, adding that it takes time.

In referring to registered cattle the young farmer said: "They are more interesting to us." As Liz put it, "It is a goal to work towards and something to look forward to." And indeed they are always looking ahead, presently their herd average is at 13,000 pounds of milk and 505 fat, and it is still on the 'rise'. They recently remodeled the stanchion barn and have room for 66 head of cattle. "When we remodeled," Schlappich explained, "we set up the barn so we can go to handling liquid manure when the need arises."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schlappich represent one of four generations living under one roof.

The Schlappichs's do all of the work themselves, except for the help of a high school student who works after school and during the summer. Alll of the milking is done by Arthur and his wife.

"I don't want all of the credit," Schlappich insisted, "My father and grandfather help whenever they can. I have two children who pitch in at times also. Lee is 8 and Tammy is 10," the young farmer added with a proud grin. Liz raised the calves besides taking care of her other chores and household duties. "When we have the room," Schlappich grinned, "she also raises the bull calves for vealers."

Schlappich attributes most of his experience to his childhood and working wtih his father before taking over for himself. However, he does not rely on past experience entirely. The Schlappichs like to know everything they can about improving their farming practices. As an example, they take forage samples three or four times a year and have them analyzed for basic nutrients through the Penn State University program. "After receiving the results and feeding recommendations, I try to pick a happy medium," Schlappich explained, "usually it lies somewhere between Penn State's recommendations and what I know I can afford."

This progressive young farmer feels the test results tell him a lot of information. When to mow hay is an example. "This year I will try to mow it earlier than I did last year," he said, "because the protein levels were high in my younger hay."

Schlappich feels there is always something to be learned. The Young Far-

The patented process controls the release of protein-building ammonia nitrogen in the rumen compared with a conventional urea-based liquid supplement. This improves the feeding efficiency of the urea. And, the slow-down means an extra margin of safety from urea toxicity—that's important when self-feeding liquid supplement.

YORK, Pa. – "Farming is a way of marketing the operator's time."

The speaker was Kent Shelhamer, Pennsylvania's Secretary of Agriculture. The event was the 59th annual York County Extension Service banquet last Friday night at Avalong Farms in York jammed to capacity for the Secretary's address.

Shelhamer has selected farm marketing as the number one issue which his administration will tackle, and the Department of Agriculture is gearing up to guide farmers into innovative ways of direct marketing their produce.

"We have 90 consumer outlets in 46 counties where farmers are selling directly to people other than other farmers," stated Shelhamer. But the Columbia County fruit grower is looking toward an as yet untouched area of the state for new marketing - those limited access four-lane highways crisscrossing Pennsylvania.

"A ready-made situation exists for farmers to sell produce at rest stops along the Interstates. That's a market that many people have forgotten; and we seem to be losing areas of direct trade these days," the farm leaser continued.

Diversification is also part of the answer, believes Shelhamer. He related the illustration of one Pennsylvania farmer who this year branched out from his traditional cropping pattern on a small percentage of the total farm acreage. That experiment included a two-acre planting of zucchini squash; the zucchini crop cleared several thousand dollars profit.

Another way of exercising more control of the markets, Shelhamer noted, is in providing more grain storage right on the farms. He would like to see government funds made more readily availbale for the construction of these storage facilities.

"Grain farmers frequently must sell their crop at harvest time when prices have dropped. Then, several months later, livestock feeders and dairymen find themselves paying higher per bushel rates for grain shipped in from the West. Local on-farm storage will benefit both the grain grower and the livestock man," Shelhamer explained.

But the agriculture department head foresees some high hurdles ahead for the future of farming, along with his optimistic outlook for marketing expansion. A good portion of the problem lies with the increasing headache of energy shortages.

"Agriculture is a high energy-use industry. Today, the four per cent of this country's population who are farmers consume 15 per cent of the world's energy produced. That's a high usage, and we're going to have to cut back," Shelhamer believes. But he warned that we may not be able to continue "going all out" in production if farmers get cut back in the amounts of natural-gas based fertilized available to them.

Consumers may have to learn to accept different buying techniques, too. Convenience packing of foods is another high energy

Zero Concord
TWIN VACUUM PIPELINE
MILKING SYSTEM
-WITH COW MONITOR
It's a combination of a new, revolutionary pipeline milking machine and the ZERO Completely-Automated Vacuum Bulk Milk Cooler.

The ZERO CONCORD is the only system that provides stable milking vacuum at the teat end — in parlor or stanchion barn — with a low or high, short or long, pipeline — and without injecting air into the milker units to move the milk Only with stable vacuum and no air injection can you hope to reduce leucocyte counts up to 65% — increase milk production as much as 20% — and prevent off-flavor and rancid milk

The safe, stable vacuum is made possible by a patented, scientific principle TWIN-VACUUM whereby one vacuum milks the cows, and a different vacuum moves the milk through a separate pipeline into the bulk tank In addition — thanks to ZERO's patented SPATTER-SPRAY Automatic Washer and new, improved, high-capacity, transparent milker unit — you have built-in, "push-button" visible self-cleaning and sanitizing of the entire system — without disassembling And there are many other advantages use, and it's one which does not necessarily add to the ultimate goodness of the food itself.

Speaking on consumer attitudes brought Shelhamer to recall the scare a few years ago concerning climbing wheat prices.

"The stories that bread would rise to one dollar per loaf were so much hogwash!" he emphasized. "Many times there is no correlation at all between the price paid to the farmer and the price paid by the housewife. Wheat has since gone down, but bread prices continue to rise."

Included in the ag secretary's address was a warning to farmers about escalating Socila Security costs. Citing statistics and economists predictions, Shelhamer noted that there is a rapidly growing number of pensioners in the general population.

"Senior citizens now make up the largest single block of voting power in this country. And the lobbying for higher pensions will continue to intensify as the cost of living keeps climbing," said Shelhamer. He predicted that the rate of Social Security deductions will escalate from the present 11 per cent to 22 per cent eventually. Magnifying the problem is a zooming decline in the national birth rate, now at 1.2 per cent, but projected to drop below the zero growth rate.

"There will be more pensioners drawing out of the fund, but fewer young workers paying in. We're headed for a approaching labor deficit market, probably by 1985."

"Farmers are dreamers," concluded Shelhamer. "They always believe what they do today will bring them a better tomorrow. Be proud you're a farmer."

The Extension Service reorganized during the annual meeting, electing Stewartstown beef and crops grower, John W. Marstellar, Sr., as their new president. His first vice-president is Eugene Kilgore of Airville, with Eugene Manifold, also of Airville, filling the slot of second vice-president. Mrs. Charles Bupp, Glen Rock, was elected secretary, and Lee Poorbaugh, York, will handle the treasurer duties.

John Smith, York County Extension agent, announced plans to move the Service offices to a new location. Extension work is currently handled from the basement of the Court House in downtown York. Projected plans call for the new offices to be located in the county home complex at Pleasant Acres, east of York.

Marion Deppen, assistant director of Extension work as being corn growing, practices, food, nutrition, and health education and land preservation. Deppen complimented the Extension workers on their excellent 4-H program, citing it as "one of the finest n the country."

Boll home features rustic kitchen and bath

Editor's Note: The subject of the following story is one of five homes which will be part of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association Heritage Trail Tour on April 20. For further information on times and price of the tour, refer to the article dealing with that information in this week's Lancaster Farming.

MANHEIM, Pa. – Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Boll, Manheim R2, have the kind of kitchen in their home that housewives and teenage cooks covet.

"The kitchen is my favorite room in the house," smiles the quietly amiable Mrs. Boll.

The work area of the combination kitchen and family room is done in elegant shades of burnt orange and brown, accented by brick. The two most outstanding characteristics of this visually soothing, spacious area are the pole lamp connected to a centrally located work counter, and the wooden shingles which cover the range hood and pantry roof.

"I got the idea for the pole lamp from a brochure," Mrs. Boll explains, " and I decided that I would like to have it in my kitchen."

She also decided, without the aid of a brochure, that she needed a centrally located working area for making pies, chopping vegetables, and doing other cooking preparations. So, the builders planned for the work area and situated it across from the sink.

"I use this particular counter more than I do the other working space," she says with a smile. It features a grill and a built-in cooling surface.

The kitchen also features a pantry, microwave oven, range, and double oven.

To complete the rustic effect she has created with the shingled roof and lamp, Mrs. Boll chose to finish the wall areas around the stove and oven with brick. And, the ceiling also features exposed beams which match the beaded inset doors on the cupboards and pantry. These cupboards are made of oak

Keeping with the rustic style of the kitchen, the Bolls separated the bathroom with this brick and pole divider.

'Project Equity' talk highlights PJCC meeting

READING, Pa. – The annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club was held at the Sheraton Bershire Inn, Reading, last month. Jersey breeders from all parts of the Commonwealth gathered fr the two-day event which culminated with the annual awards banquet and business meeting.

One highlight of the meeting was a speech by Guy Crews of Columbus, Ohio, who spoke on "Project Equity" – the pricing of milk on marketable and nutritional value rather than on volume along. Crews reported that theere has been no appreciable change in methods of pricing milk in over 40 years. Research has proven that consumers prefer to drink high solids milk, but pricing methods have not encouraged production of this product. Cheese manufacturers have become alarmed by low cheese yields resulting from the low solids milk which they receive. Crews stressed the fact that protein pricing is not a breed issue and that dairymen in all breeds could benefit from a pricing change.

A convincing argument was California's component pricing system which has been in effect for several years. This state demands highers solids in its whole, skim, and lo-fat milk than is accepted in the rest of the nation. As a result, California has become the country's leading state in per capita milk consumption - proof that the consumer will buy a better bottle of milk.

Crews also reported that manufacturing plants in the Mid-west which have paid for milk on protein content have raised their premiums three times because of the added profit to the plant realized by this pricing program.

Awards for the top herds and individual Jersey cows in the state were presented by Penn State's Dexter Putnam. Results were: top herd (under 50 cows) for milk – William and Susan Dietrich, Pipersville, Pa., with 11,361 pounds of milk; top herd (under 50 cows) for fat – Clyde McConaughey of Smicksburg with 564 pounds fat; top herd (50 cows and over) for both milk and fat – Wallace Mellott, Harrisonville, with 12,997 pounds milk and 698 pounds fat; top herd in classification (under 50 cows) went to Mildred Seeds, Top-O-Hill Farm, Downingtown; top herd in classification (50 cows and over) was G. Richard Moose, New Wilmington top individual cow in the state was a two-yr.-old owned by Cynthia Waltemyer, Walebe Farms, Collegeville. The cow produced 18,467 pounds milk, and 911 pounds fat on her first lactation. Miss Waltemyer was also the winner of both the Brunges Production trophy and the Olmstead trophy. Winner of the Fetherolf Trophy was Norman D. Weaver of Bradford County. Distinguished Service award went to Adolph Zoellin of Ottsville, the founder of the good Freyhof herd of Jerseys, winner of production awards in recent years.

The 1976 World Jersey Congress held in Australia and New Zealand was the subject of a slide presentation by William Swingle of Canton during a social hour held Friday evening. Berks County's dairy princess, Nedra Yoder, crowned the new Pennsylvania Jersey Queen, Lori Sollenberger of Everett,in a ceremony which concluded the evening's events.

The annual PJCC Calf sale, which supports the Pennsylvania youth fund, was held Saturday morning at Long Meadows Farm in Hamburg. A dozen registered Jersey heifers, ranging in age from three to eight months, were sold into Virginia, New Jersey and Ohio as well as Pennsylvania. The top selling heifer at $710 was a daughter of Generators Orator of gston, consigned by Ogston Farm of Columbus, N.J., and sold to Jack Ernest of Frederickstown, Ohio.

Consumer day set for Thurs.

Providing a striking contrast to the soothing kitchen is the bright and cheery family area of the kitchen. Sliding glass doors leading to a patio provide sunlight to set off the stone fireplace.

This particular portion of the house has been enjoyed by so many visitors to the Boll household that the company who put the kitchen in has included a picture of it in their brochure. The brochure also contains a picture of the bathroom, Mrs. Boll's second favorite room in the redecorated home.

The bathroom is done in shades of blue-grey with orange as the accent color. The Bolls again utilized the rustic effect that they have in their kitchen by using shingles over the washbowl and mirrors and bluish-grey poles separating the shower and toilet area from the powder facilities. To accent the blue-grey decor, Mrs. Boll chose an orange wash-bowl. Her wallpaper also carries out the color scheme.

The big, clear-span part is just what you need to store large, tall equipment — combines, 4-wheel drive tractors, hay balers and other super-size farm tools. The off-peak side bay gives you up to 50% more storage space to 'garage' smaller implements and vehicles — tillage tools, small tractors, trucks, cars, trailers, boats, the family camper, maybe a snowmobile or two. A big, wide sliding track door in the clear-span section lets you move big machinery in and out easily, while the smaller door on the side bay endwall provides easy in/out access for smaller equipment without 'jockeying' the bigger stuff around to do it.

A handy little room that she especially utilizes in her laundry which is also a sewing room.

"I like this part of the house because I can sew, wash, mend, iron, and do my ceramics all in one," she explains.

The room contains a washer, dryer, hamper, medicine chest, built-in sewing machine, and ironing board. There is also quite a bit of storage space.

"I don't sew as much as my daughters do, but I really put this room to good use," she says. The Bolls have three daughters – Cynthia, 17; Sandra, 15; and Londa, 12.

Although she admits to being a busy farmwife, she does enjoy doing ceramics and has created several attractive additions for her home.

One particularly striking lamp she has fashioned sits in the foyer leading to the living room. Glazed in mother-of-pearl, the egg-shaped globe is filled with flowers and a bird.

One characteristic of the Boll home is its large windows and doors to let in plenty of light. The living room, especially, has this feature. Knowing that she wanted as large a window as possible for this room, Mrs. Boll chose a 12 foot wide picture window with a bottom section that opens outward.

"I wanted something bigger," she notes, "but this was the biggest they had." This window in itself was too large for the carpenter's taste because he said she would ruin her furniture from all the light it would let in.

Decorating the windows are drapes in a burnt orange and brown print. The fabric is pure linen.

A second distinguishing characteristic of the living room are the murals on the light green wall. Although part of the wallpaper, they appear to have been painted directly onto the plaster.

Another section of interest in the Boll home is Mr. Boll's office. Done in offwhite and black striped wallpaper, the decor keeps with the rustic effect in the other areas of the home through the use of mushroom board paneling. The accent color is, again, reddish orange.

The Bolls began their redecorating in 1969, and in 1973 added a section to their home. From aerial view photos taken of the home prior to the most recent remodeling, the looks of the farmhouse have changed drastically.

"Redecorating is something we always thought we'd like to do if we could," Mrs. Boll explains, "and, with the prices going up the way they are, we thought we'd better do it now rather than later."

"This is our home for the rest of our lives," says Mrs. Boll, "so, we can enjoy it now as well as when we're older."

Visitors to the home on the Heritage Tour will be able to share with the Bolls their enjoyment of the house.

Heritage Trail tour features farm homes

LANCASTER, Pa. – The Lancaster County Farmers' Association Heritage Trail Tour is back for its third consecutive year. Concentrated in different areas of the county each year, this year's group of homes are located in and around the Manheim area.

Tourists will get to view five different farmhouses on April 20 from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. Included on the tour are: the James Garber home, Mt. Joy R2; the Eugene Boll home, Manheim R2; the Thomas Cope home, Manheim R7; the Earl Landis home, Manheim R7; and the Arthur Reist home, Eden Road, Lancaster.

Following the tour, a luncheon will be served at the Landis Valley Resort Inn. Featured speaker for that luncheon will be Joyce Bupp, Seven Valleys, Pa. Mrs. Bupp has been a farmwife for 13 years and a reporter for Lancaster Farming for six months. She takes an active role in dairy farming and has been a spokeman for the industry for years. Her planned entertainment for the tour luncheon consists of a monologue skit entitled, "There's a farmer in her somewhere." The skit includes props depicting the many facets of a farmer's talents and abilities.

Tickets for the tour can be purchased from the following Lancaster County Farmers' Association members: Mrs. Robert L. Brubaker, R2 Valley Road, Manheim, Pa. 17545; Mr. Robert Rohrer, Nottingham R1, Pa. 19362; Mrs. Abram Barley, R1, Washington Boro, Pa. 17543; Mrs. Richard Hess, Strasburg R1, Pa. 17579; Mrs. Royd Shertzer, Lancaster R6, Pa. 17603; or Mrs. Linda Kreider, Quarryville R1, Pa. 17566. Send a self-addressed, large stamped envelope with a check for six dollars for each ticket purchased.

Winter-kill of grain fields assessed

COLLEGE PARK Md. – Some fields of winter oats, barley and wheat still look dubious, reports Joseph L. Newcomer, Extension agronomist at the University of Maryland, here.

Newcomer urges farmers to check their fields carefully and make a decision within the next week or two about possible replanting to another crop.

If it hasn't been done already, immediate top-dressing with a high nitrogen fertilizer is also recommended. This procedure will give zip to the developing small grain, and it will be of benefit even if the field is replanted to corn. Apply at the rate of 30 to 40 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre.

There is one exception to this advice, however, Newcomer warned. Don't top-dress a field with high-nitrogent fertilizer if you have definite plans to replant with long-season soybeans.

The Maryland Extension specialist offered this rule-of-thumb for farmers trying to decide whether they should replant a field of small grain:

Don't replant if there seems to be a populaiton of at least 112 plants per square foot. Even a population as low as six plants per square foot might make a decent crop of oats, barley or wheat under ideal circumstnces with plenty of fertilizer, he commented.

Replanting with Spring wheat is not recommended anywhere in Maryland.

Spring barley is not recommened for any area of the state except Garret and Allegheny Counties, he notes, and Spring oats should be planted only north and west of a line between Washington, D. C., Baltimore and Elkton. But even in these areas, the Spring seeding should be done immediately.

Otherwise, corn and soybeans are the recommended crops where it is deemed advisable to replant fields of small grain.

A final factor to consider in making a decision to replant Winter-damaged small grain is the weed situation, Newcomer cautioned. If the current poplulation of newly emerged perennial and annual weeds like garlic, corncolke or cowcockle, ragged-robin, corn chamomile, chichweed, kawel (German moss), daisies and dogfennel (maywweed) numbers more than six per square foot, forget about tryng to save the small grain.

Rather, make plans to control the weeds by diking an application of proper herbicides in connection with plans to grow corn or soybeans in the affected field.

USDA efficiency scored

Washington-Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland recently directed agency administrators to begin an "immediate review" of all Washington office agriculture personnel to determine whether the work they do "can be terminated, combined with other work, or streamlined and simplified."

Bergland said the purpose was "to operate the government as efficiently and effectively as possible with the minimum number of federal employees."

The secretary said he did not plan any reductions in force. "We are convinced that through attrition and reassignment we can continue to carry out our work without disrupting operations internally or diminishing the services provide the public," he said.

Agency administrators were asked to report by April 15 the number of positions, or jobs, that could be eliminated, plus any recommendations they wished to submit on reorganization of their agencies. New job ceilings will be established for each agency as a result of this review, he said.

Mr. Bergland said the review may be extended later to include regional and state offices.

"I want to stress no one will lose his or her job as a result of this review," the secretary said. He said unnecessary positions would be abolished "as they become vacant."

Farmhouse is wonderland of decorating ideas

By JOANNE SPAHR

Editor's note: For the third year, the Lancaster County Farmers' Association (associated with the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association) Women's Committee will sponsor their Heritage Trail Home Tour on April 20. Guests will tour five homes in the Manheim area which contain a legacy of Americana, farming history, and beauty. The following article deals with one of the homes to be visited.

MOUNT JOY, Pa. – A craft or interior decorating enthusiast could get engrossed in the home of the James Garber family, Mt. Joy R2, and never come out for days.

Exaggerated as the above statement might be, the home is definitely a wonderland of crafts and original decorating ideas to delight any visitor.

Mrs. Garber, formerly Martha Stauffer, is largely responsible for the furnishing and refurbishing of this five-bedroom, three-story brick farm house, although she likes to play down her creative role.

"I don't help in the barn or fields anymore," points out the energetic, attractive mother of six, "and everything I do in the house is a project that I really enjoy."

And, while her home is part of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association Heritage Home Tour, she does say that any decorating she has done has been for the enjoyment of her family and not simply for show.

For instance, her most recent project – decorating the downstairs and upstairs halls – was done as a family endeavor.

"Now that was a huge undertaking," she admits with a sigh as she recalls all the work the family went through. As in most old farm houses, the paint was several coats thick and chipping.

"So, we torched all the paint off and then papered," she states, adding that she is her own paper hanger and painter.

In the downstairs hall, the Garbers worked around original architecture which included a wooden archway and Christian doors. These features now add a rich flavor to the decor. Hanging in the middle of the archway, illuminating the hall, is an elegant crystal chandelier.

The Garbers also laid a rich red, floral designed Axminster carpet. This type of floor covering was popular in the 1940's and early 50's, and only recently caught Mrs. Garber's eye again.

Mirrors reflect the beauty of this area of the home, jeweled with elegant calde and flower arrangements and crafts which the pert and adept farmwife has handcrafted.

Singling out one of her favorite pieces of decoupage, Mrs. Garber notes that she went on a "decoupage binge" a while back, as wellas a macrame spreee.

"Oh, i do enjoy crafts," she emphasizes, but she quickly adds thzt she has to be in the mood to do them before she starts, and when she begins something, she sticks with it until she's done.

As a result, he walls are bedecked with wall hangings, wreathes, plaques, and conversation pieces, and her furniture is beautifully laden with centerpieces, candles, and delightful knickknacks.

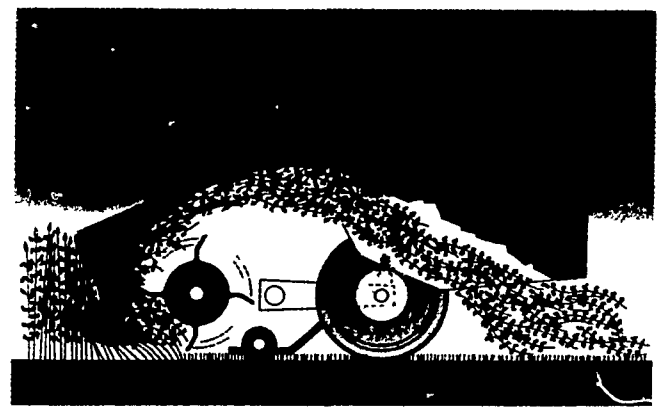
OUR NEW 9-FOOT CUT/DITIONER DOES EVEN MORE FOR LESS MONEY

Farmers tell us our 7-foot Cut-ditioner does more work than a 9-foot mower-conditioner. Why? Because it's a plug-free machine. So just imagine what our new 9-foot 279 Cut-ditioner will do! You save hundreds of dollars in terms of initial equipment cost, plus get more work done faster. The 279 is a better way to get high-quality, faster drying hay in both heavy and light crops. Whatever your operation: chop, bale, stack, or bigroll!

The New Idea 9-foot Cut-ditioner is a high-capacity machine with a minimum of moving parts to wear out and maintain. And it's versatile. In addition to cutting, conditioning, windrowing and swathing, it can be used to ted, turn windrows, trim pastures and gather and condition crop residues. Because of this versatility, farmers called our original 7-foot Cut-ditioner the "Hay Thing."



You can still buy the popular 7-footer that does more for less money. And, now we've got a bigger "Hay Thing" going for you, the new 9-foot Cut-ditioner that does even more for less money.

It's your choice. We made both to suit your particular needs. But one thing's for sure - when you buy either Cut-ditioner, you'll have it around to do a lot of work for a long time. It's the non-stop, trouble-free, low-cost way to make high-quality hay.

Shade elected YCCC chairman

LANCASTER—A 36-year old Huntingdon County dairyman was recently elected chairman of a select group of young dairy farmers.

Geary E. Shade, who along with his wife Judy operates a 234-acre dairy operation at Alexandria R1, Pa., was named 1977 chairman of the Young Cooperator Consultant Committee for Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative. John E. Barley, Conestoga R1, Pa., was elected vice chairman and Paul L. Yingling, Martinsburg R2, Pa., was elected secretary.

The YCC members are designated by being the top five finalists for the past three years of the Young Cooperator contest program. The 15-member consultant committee plans upcoming programs, undertakes various educational and service projects and represents itself on Inter-State's various director committees.

Young cooperators are selected each year from the members of each of Inter-State's 22 districts. The contestants must be active dairy farmer members between the ages of 21 and 35. The program was organized to provide the YC's with the opportunity to develop a better understanding of their cooperative's structure.

The Young Cooperator Consultant Committee at its annual organizational meeting heard updates from Lester C. Jones, Inter-State's presidnt; Dr. James E. Honan, general manager; and William B. Hastings, director of field services; on Inter-State's recent and future plans for expansion. Charles H. Rohrer, Paradise R1, Pa., presided as 1976 YCCC chairman. Curtis N. Kratz, Souderton, Pa., dairy farmer reported on Inter-State's membership relations committee which he chairs.

The new chairman of the group graduated with honors from the Pennsylvania State University in 1963. The son of Freda and the late Edward Shade, he operates a 50 head Holstein herd with an average milk production of 18,000 pounds per cow with about 650 pounds butterfat. He is a member of the Dairy Shrine Club and is an ASCS committeeman. He was selected the third place finalist in the Pennsylvania Jaycees Outstanding Young Farmers contest in 1973.

Inter-State's Young Cooperators will hold their annual contest June 23 and 24 at the Hunt Valley Inn, Hunt Valley, Md. At the two-day program they will join in the Pennmarva Young Cooperator Program which also includes representatives from Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers; Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Assn.; Capitol Milk Producers Cooperative; and Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers.

"I love sales," she states unabashedly, "I get many of my things there."

A small tally of some of the items she has purchased and fashioned into focal points in the house are: a camel back trunk she is presently refinishing in her son's room; a collection of gass which she houses in a butterfuly corner cupboard in her dining room; and a trunk for photo albums which she is also refinishing and has placed beside the fireplace in the dining room.

"When I work on a project, I like to be frugal," she notes. She gets particular enjoyment out of refashioning something she already owns, or buying something at a sale and creating her ideal from it.

"Because we work with what we have, and do it ourselves, we can remodel relatively inexpensively," she notes.

An outstanding example of this is the room now belonging to her 17-year-old daughter, Beverly.

Beverly's room was formed from half oof the third floor attic. Two small flights of stairs leading to the room have been shaped into a delightful "waiting room," as her one daughter called it.

The stairs and carpeting are reminiscent ofthe yellow brick road in "The Wizard of Oz," as they lead the way to the unusual bedroom.

The unique feature of the carpeting is its design,which is a light blue, gold, and white stripe in varying widths. Although the floor covering is unique in itself, the most striking feature about it is that Mrs. Garber and her sister-in-law laid it themselves.

"This project was just a lot of fune," announces Mrs. Garberexuberantly. She and ıer sister-in-law took emnants and did some nanipulating to get the iesign just the way they vanted it. When they were inished, they were pleased vith the results.

"We were working wtith ıneven pices, but we nanaged to have some symmetry," she explains.

After the job was complete, Mr. Garber constructed a cased-in bed and a ıeadboard, which Mrs. Garber then covered.

Another outstanding segment of the Garber home s the combined living room and dining room which .eatures a touch of Williamsburg with a colonial effet.

"I wanted a formal room, but it had to be warm," Mrs. Garber says. "It just had to be 'me.'"

The room was done in Williamsburg blue and red with cream walls.

To add the "touch of me" she desired, Mrs. Garber has bedecked the room withh flower arrangements, paintings, crafts, and a copper woodbox in front of the fireeplace.

"My home is 'busy'," she concedes, "and, Williamsburg is much plainer than this, so I added the colonial touch."

The dining room houses the before-mentioned butterfly cupboard with an illuminated glass collection. This corner cupboard had originally been in the den, but the Garbers felt it belonged in the dinig room, so they moved it to its present locztion.

The den, itself, is another interesting room. The most outstanding feature is the bookcase along the East wall, which was fashioned out of paint shelves from an interior decorating store and refinished two years ago.

"The family thought I was crazy when I brought these home," Mrs. Garber laughs, "but, they fit in place perfectly and have worked in well."

The cupboards in her kitchen were another project which took a lot of time.

"I took three months to refinish these cupboards, and may family suffered along with me," she says with a grimace and a roll of her eyes when she things back a year.

fter all the work that went into the refinishing, the family now finds the room rewarding, because from all appearances, tey installed a completely new kitchen.

"You can really do a lot with what you have at your disposal," Mrs. Garber reminds.

The interior of the house is not the only part that has been remodeled. Mr. Garber recently rinished a patio in the front of the building which the family really enjoys. And, he is now constructing a 60,000 pullet house to add to an already operating 55,000 bird house,

One thing is certain – if you like crafts, interior decorating, landscaping, or farming operations, you'll enjoy a visit to the James Garber home.

A distinctive feature of the Garber dining room is the butterfly corner cupboard filled with glassware collected by Mrs. Garber. Here, she sets the table as she plans to have it decorated for the Heritage Trail tour.

Harold Bollinger named Outstanding Young Farmer

MYERSTOWN, Pa. -- Harold Bollinger of Willow Maple Farm, Newmanstown R1, was named the Outstanding Young Farmer of the ELCO Young-Adult Farmers Chapter at that group's second annual dinner-meeting held at the ELCO High School last Friday evening. This award is presented annually to the member who has done the most to promote the Young Farmer program.

Bollinger, who was a school board member when the Young Farmer program was first instituted in the school, has served on several committees and been instrumental in guiding the development of the ELCO program.

Other honors handed out at the banquet, which was attended by 100 Young Farmers and guests, included plaques recognizing participation in the statewide Summer tour.

Host farms receiving plaques were: Willow-Maple Farm run by Donald and Harold Bollinger; Fort Zeller Farm (run by Eugene and Sylvia Hoffman) Newmanstown R1, and Clyde and David Bowman, Myerstown R2.

Outgoing officers were also recognized. Malcolm Sonnen, Richland R1, last year's president; Fred Bohn, Myerstown R1, last year's vice president; Donald Bollinger, Newmanstown R1, former secretary; M. Luther Bennetch, Newmanstown R1, former treasurer, and Marlin Getz, Myerstown R2, former public relations director, all received awards.

Carlton Tucker, Myerstown, local local chapter high school principal, was made an honorary Young Farmer during the meeting. The honorary awards presented each year to the non-member who has assisted in the development of the chapter. Tucker was presented the award because of his outstanding support of the adult education in agriculture. He assisted in writing the guidelines and policies that structure the program, and is currently serving on the advisory committee.

Ron Bower, ELCO Young Farmer advisor, presented the awards.

Food buying guide available to public

WASHINGTON, D.C. If you find it difficult to judge quality in the foods you buy, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has help for you.

The help comes in the form of a small publication, entitled, "How to Use USDA grades in Buying Food." The recently revised and updated publication shows the official grade marks used on meat, eggs, poultry, dairy products, and fresh, canned, and frozen fruits and vegetables. It explains what the grades mean for each of these products and gives tips on how to use the various grades.

The booklet advises consumers that "...if you learn to recognize the grade mark when it is used and know what it means, it can help you to know more about what you are buying, to compare prices of foods in different stores, and to get the most for your money."

Single copies of Home and Garden Bulletin No. 196. "How to Use USDA Grades in Buying Food," (G-196) may be obtained by postcard request to the Office of Communication, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Please use your zipcode.

Food basket costs averaged

HARRISBURG, Pa. -- Pennsylvania's average retail "food basket" cost for the month of March was $10.26, according to the monthly food basket survey report released this week by Kent D. Shelhamer, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture.

Shelhamer said the average retail cost of the food basket was based on a sampling of 14 food items, intended to provide consumers with retail food price information.

"Prices have been consistently on the rise over the past six months," Shelhamer noted, "but the increased food prices for our Pennsylvania consumers only reflect a steady climb in the average shopping bag cost which is nationwide in scope."

Of key importance to consumers, Shelhamer pointed out, "is our finding that the cost of selected storebrand items was seven per cent below the cost of namebrand items."

According to the survey, prepared by the Department's Bureau of Rural Affairs, the average food basket price for March was highest in the northeastern part of the state at $10.55. Lowest prices were recorded in the southeast central part of the state at $10. All six regions of the Commonwealth reported prices averaging over $10 for the 14 items.

The difference in cost of the food basket in rural and urban areas remained at about four per cent in March, showing that rural communities continue to take the brunt of inflation.

Items in the food basket which increased in price during March were coffee, from $2.67 to $2.87 a pound; fresh pears, from 39 to 40 cents a pound; canned corn, from 34 to 35 cents a pound; sugar, from 21 to 22 cents a pound; shortening, from 54 to 55 cents a pound; cornflakes,from 59 to 61 cents a pound; chicken, from 55 to 57 cents a pound; and ground beef, from 95 to 96 cents a pound.

Items decreasing in price were potatoes, from 16 to 13 cents a pound; cabbage, from 41 to 38 cents a pound; eggs, from $1.01 to 91 cents a dozen large eggs; and American cheese, from $1.61 to $1.60 a pound.

Bread remains about the same at 38 cents a pound loaf.

AFBF supports ag research

WASHINGTON, D. C. – The American Farm Bureau Federation told members of Congress recently that monies invested in agricultural research will return rewarding benefits.

"The result of this type of useful government spending has been demonstrated by the Department of Agriculture and state agricultural experiment stations," Robert B. Delano, vice-president of the American Farm Bureau Federation said.

In a statement presented before a House Agriculture Subcommittee, Delano pointed out that "Adequate research is the basis for more efficient production and marketing; lower costs; and new food, forest and fiber products." And he added:

"This leads to improved living for all Americans."

The Farm Bureau spokesman pointed out that expanded research can help to find "(1) solutions to national energy problems, (2) better solutions to agriculture's environmental concern, (3) acceptable controls for diseases, noxious weeds, and insects, (4) new crop varieties with higher nutritional values and varieties suited to mechanical handling and processing (5) cultural practices to improve soil and water conservation, (6) solutions to marketing problems, (7) additional uses for agricultural byproducts."

Delano, a Virginia farmer and president of the Virgina Farm Bureau Federation pointed out to the Congressmen that increases in the percentage of research funds allocated to federal installations has caused a trend toward centralization. "This trend should be reversed. We urge funding of the State Agricultural Experiment Stations Research Facilities Act," he said. And he added:

"We encourage interstate cooperation to intensify research effort and avoid duplication.

"Transportation and other marketing research is not receiving an adequate share of the USDA research dollar," Delano said. "The regionalization of this research effort through the Agricultural Research Service has downgraded it and made it less effective."

The Virginia farmer told the Subcommittee members that Farm Bureau supports legislation which recognizes the need for research in all segments of agriculture and our food system. "Food distribution accounts for a largers share of the consumer's food expenditures than raw agricultural products. As a consequence, additional research is needed in processing, marketing, and transportation as well as the factors which affect the production of raw products," he said.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is the nation's largest general farm organization representing over 2.6 million member families. The Federation is headquartered in Park Ridge, Illinois.

My Thoughts

And welcome to them

By JOANNE SPAHR
Associate Editor

When I was a child, Easter didn't mean egg rolls on the front lawn or even a big cache of Easter candy on that special Sunday morning. Instead, more often than not, my Easter basket consisted mostly of a lot of geen excelsior and an occasional chocolate bunny or a malted egg midst all the packing materials.

And, if I recall correctly, I didn't always have new Easter dresses with which to impress my friends.

While this sounds like I was the proverbial "deprived child" of the '50's, I really wasn't. My parents were starting out in farming, and we all had to make sacrifices -- and my brother and I knew it.

We learned to live frugally, within our means, and without every single whim or fancy fulfilled. So, an occasional splurge was really exciting, and we didn't often forget those special events.

Now, of course, things have changed considerably on the farm, but the lessons of childhood still remain. An occasional splurge is fun, but more often than not, I "do without," as my grandfather would say, when an expense isn't necessary.

So, once again this Easter there will be no new Easter dress, and no candy, except possibly the basket I plan to give my little nephew -- after all, we don't want him to miss out on any of the good things in life.

On being a farm wife - and other hazards

By Joyce Bupp

The miracle of Easter has come again.

And with it comes the joy of living on a farm in that most beautiful season-the time of planting.

The miracle of resurrection comes to farmers, not only at Easter, but with each tiny seed placed in the warming ground for sunshine and rain to nurture.

A seed contains all the elements to bring forth complete and abundant life. But the seed, itself, must die, so that the proper order of Nature can allow that new life to begin. From death comes life.

The birth of a seed, like the rebirth celebrated at Easter, is an encompassing, thrilling drama. One tiny bit of matter, one spark of life, is faced with incomparable odds to overcome if it is to survive.

Overwhelming enemies wait at every turn as the tiny hope of corn, wheat, and barley seeds send out the first blades of green. Like raising a child, the farmer-parent of the crop can help it over some obstacles.

Fertilizer is a vitamin fed the tiny newborn to give it strength. Pesticides and herbicides, like antibiotics against human diseases, can be appied to the emerging babes. But, like children, seedlings must make the ultimate effort on their own, growing inside from their roots and stretching tall to their maturity. And, again like a parent nuturing a child, there are crucial factors affecting the tiny seeds's growth that we simply cannot greatly change. The final decision as to whether a crop does or does not grow is out of our hands. And so the farmer waits on fate, knowing that he is in no way the complete master of his destination.

But each year, the miracle of the resurrection and the miracle of the time of the seed come together again, renewing the farmer's faith and strengthening him to plant another year.

May you and your families have a most blessed Easter and planting season.

PFA president knocks minimum wage

WASHINGTON, D.C. – An increase in the minimum wage would lead to higher unemployment and increase inflation, a spokesman for the nation's largest general farm organization told members of Congress recently.

"It is time for the new Administration and the Congress to apply zero-based budgeting principles to the minimum wage," Eugene Thompson, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association said.

In a statement presented to a House Education and Labor Subcommittee on behalf of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Thompson said, "since the minimum wage tends to be the floor under which no one will work, whether the employer is required to pay the federal minimum or not," any increase in the minimum wage would very likely lead to higher unemployment.

"Employers, including farmers, would be forced to place greater emphasis on the efficiency of labor in their operations in order to offset, in whole or in part, the higher wage costs, since the price of labor is based on productivity - that is, the worth or value of the service performed," Thompson explained.

"There would be a loss of jobs, both in terms of people so discouraged as to not even try to seek employment and in terms of jobs eliminated or not created."

Thompson pointed out that an increased minimum wage would also worsen inflation. "Because increases in the minimum wage have an effect on the entire scale of wages, there would be a ripple effect on all wages – not just on the workers who are now being paid the minimum wage."

The Farm Bureau spokesman told Subcommitttee members that, while farmers are not experts in the field of labor economics, "we are experts, in fact the world's leading experts, in the field of producting an abundance of food and fiber. We do this at the lowest per unit cost of any farmers in the world in large part because of the implementation of labor efficiency on our farms." And he added:

"Any farmer who employs one or more persons is affected by this legislation.

"We believe an increase in the minimum wage would drive from the labor market the least educated, least literate, and least skilled of workers...," he said.

Instead of considering legislation to raise the minimum wage, Thompson said, "Congress should call into service the best minds available in the field of economics and social welfare and make a careful and unbiased examination of the fedeal minimum wage.

"Hard facts are lacking on the impact of the minimum wage on our economy," he said. And he added:

"At the very least, this bill should be amended to provide job opportunities for the young and the less skilled in our society, either by an outright exemption as provided in a number of state minimum wage laws; by a minimum wage differential; by an exemption for season jobs; or through some other means of insubstaining these people from the adverse effects of this legislation. We also advocate a change in the youth employment provisions of the Act so that young people 12 and 13 years of age can, with the consent of their parents, do nonhazardous season work on farms in their local areas."

Peach Blossom Festival to share farmers' story

GATCHELLVILLE, Pa. - With the advent of Spring and in anticipation of peach blossoms heralding its coming throughout southern York County, Maple Lawn Farms has announced April 16 and 17 as the weekend for its third annual Peach Blossom Festival. Saturday's hours will run 10:00 a.m. to 6 p.m., with Sunday events beginning at 1 p.m. continuing till 6 p.m.

This year, the York County Farmers's Association will be sharing the farmer's story through their various commodity exhibits complete with live animals in most cases. Women producers of beef, dairy, pork, poultry, fruit and vegetables will offer nutritional facts, recipes, samples, farm philosophy and figures to promote better understanding between farm and non-farm comsumers.

Many of the farm organization counterparts will be serving food at the concession stands including the York County Pork Producers, the York County Lamb Association, and the Milk and Money 4-H Club, Airville.

In addition, the Fawn Grove Fire Co. will serve burgers and soda; the Delta-Cardiff Fire Co. will run their famous pizza truck; and the American Foreign Service Club of Kennard-Dale will offer soft pretzels, lemon blend and lemon sticks to hungry visitors. Tom Wallace, who has become famous for his "peachy dogs," will serve plain doggies and coffee.

The Blossom Barn will house the food concession stand and a 40-booth craft fair.

A brand new addition to the festival will be a complete line-up of farm machinery from a local dealer to illustrate the type of cost-investment local farmers have in producing their crops.

"The purpose of this annual event is to bring people together close to the land where their food begins. Once they see and understand what it's all about, they will realize the importance of preserving agriculture and the livelihood of the farmer," said Gail McPherson, festival coordinator.

DeLaval visited

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. – . . . J. M. Horst and Clyde Lutz of J. M. Horst Company in Quenton attended the 1977 De Laval Dealer Convention at the Hellenic Center in Poughkeepsie March 29-30.

While at the convention, Horst and Lutz received a sneak preview of De Laval's new product lines, met with engineering experts for the dairy and farm equipment company and learned more about financing the sale of his De Laval products. The group also toured De Laval's main factory and rubber plant.

A well-established manufacturer of dairy equipment, the Farm Division of De Laval is expanding into other lines of farm equipment designed to serve the entire livestock industry.

Hort and Lutz joined 80 other people directly associated with De Laval dealerships, as well as several people from De Laval headquarters at the Poughkeepsie meeting.

Bergland wants beef advice

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has sent telegrams to members of the Cattle Adisory Committee asking for ideas on "what action I might take as secretary or what changes in legislation might be beneficial" to livestock producers.

Reports reaching the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) indicate some beef cattle producers are selling off livestock due to rising costs of hay and mixed feeds, and, in some areas, expenses of having to haul water because of drought. Since February 1976 livestock feed prices have increased nine per cent, while beef cattle prices declined about three per cent. Baled alfalfa hay, for example, averaged $80.30 a ton nationally in February, compared with $69.90 a year earlier. Beef steers and heifers marketed at an average of $35.70 per cwt. this February, $36.80 a year earlier.

Although consumers have benefitted from retail beef price drops of about four per cent over the past year, heavy slaughter of beef cattle this spring would accelerate retail prices late this year and into next year, according to USDA economists.

The Secretary's telegram says, One of the most frustrating concerns to me since taking office has been the condtion of our livestock industry... There are signs of better times ahead for livestock producers, but to make sure, let's pursue every means possible to make this a reality. Please study the situation and write me your thoughts...I would appreciate receiving your answer as soon as possible."

FFA foundation launches fund drive

LOS ANGELES, Calif. - In a campaign to meet the increasing financial needs of the Future Farmers of America, the FFA Foundation Sponsoring Committee has launched a program aimed at receiving donations of $100, or more, from a variety of individuals.

FFA membership, at over 500,000 in 1976, is at a record high this year which is placing an additional burden on the Foundation's financial resources. As a result, the Committee is calling on anyone who is interested in the future of U.S. agriculture and its youth to contribute to this worthwhile cause.

"Youg people are responding to the needs of U.S. agriculture in ever-greater numbers," says Clarke A. Nelson, group vice president of the Carnation Company and the Chairman-elect of the FFA Sponsoring Committee this year.

"The production of food and clothing for the world's billions has an urgency that's unprecedented in history," Mr. Nelson adds. "Because this country is the world's greatest producer of food and fiber, agriculture has taken on an importance unheard of a few years ago."

FFA activities are entirely funded by member dues and outside contributions. Donations to the FFA Foundation are used for a variety of FFA programs including proficiency awards, contests, leadership development, and many other national and local activities.

Donations can be sent to Donald N. McDowell, executive director, FFA Foundation Sponsoring Committee, P. O. Box 5117, Madison, Wisconsin 53705.

Future of rural Pa. discussed

By JOANNE SPAHR

HARRISBURG, Pa.—What's the future of rural Pennsylvania?

One hundred and ten individuals from a cross section of the state's rural-oriented organizations gathered at the Host Inn, Harrisburg, on March 27 to 29 to consider and hash out this question with the hopes of formulating recommendations and resolutions to take back to their home groups.

Dr. Louis S. Meyer, director of the Institute for Community Services of Edinboro State College, and coordinator for the two-day event, explained the concept of the first "Future of Rural Pennsylvania" workshop.

"There was no captive audience here," he explained, comparing the conference to business conventions or sociology conventions.

"We extended invitations to a wide variety of individuals in the rural segment such as county commissioners, vo-ag instructors, the Grange, the office of aging, and consumer groups," he continued. With this cross section, the hope was to combine the wide ranging input and to come up with resolutions and recommendations for each individual's home group to endorse and relay to legislators.

A few of the cooperating agencies and organizations taking part in the workshop were the Farm Credit System, Farmers Home, National Farmers Organization, Pennsylvania Association of Older Persons, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania Farmers Union, and 32 others.

Edinboro State College, Edinboro, sponsored the event through its institute for Community Services. As a matter of procedure the college puts on several workshops of this sort each year, and is presently involved in setting up several others around the state with different topics.

One of the speakers at Monday afternoon's session was Yolanda Jeselnick, director of the Area Agency on Aging, Ridgway, Pa. Ms. Jeselnick spoke on the handicaps faced by the elderly living in rural areas of the Commonwealth.

She first pointed out that the entire United States is now dealing with a generation that has never existed before in the history of the country.

"The fact is," stated the distinguished director, "people are living longer than they ever did, and young people are not having as many children." This has led to a decrease of 25 per cent for individuals under 25 years of age and a doubling of the absolute number over 60.

A few of the problems of the elderly living in rural Pa., enumerated by Ms. Jeselnick, are age discrimination and lack of housing alternatives.

Age discrimination comes in the form of the arbitrary ruling that an individual 65 years of age must retire. "This is simply because the labor market doesn't have enough jobs," stated Ms. Jeselnick. "However, that problem will take care of itself and just quietly go away," she continued. This natural process will take place because of the lopsided numbers of individuals over 65 as compared to those under 25 years of age.

However, the housing problem for the elderly in rural Pennsylvania will not take care of itself.

"These people are in desperate need of alternate means of housing other than home ownership" stated Ms. Jeselnick. At the present time, the only other route for these individuals to take besides owning a home is to live in a nursing home.

"At $1000 a month, the price of nursing homes up my way, how long do you think it would take to dissipate the equity of a lifetime?" questioned the adament lady.

Other concerns for these individuals is lack of accessibility to the agencies of which they are in dire need. For instance, there is usually a long distance between them and the social security office, as well as a lack of public transportation. Also, in many instances in rural area of the Commonwealth, medical care may be as far away as 50 miles. Another factor working against the elderly is legislation for them which has an urban bias.

"There is no common body of advocacy for rural people," Ms. Jeselnick declared, "And , that is a problem."

She also pointed out that we often underestimate the strength of older people and that we need to break apart these myths before we can attack any problems.

"Economically, they have much to give the society. They may only have a third grade education, but they have the wisdom of a lifetime," she emphasized.

As a means toward solving the problem, Ms. Jeselnick advocated working the Area Agencies on Aging, which are located in every county in Pennsylvania.

PURINA HIGH OCTANE COW CHOW 36

THE DAIRY SUPPLEMENT WITH "milk power"

WHAT GIVES PURINA Hi-O COW CHOW 36 IT'S "MILK POWER"?

Purina Dairy scientists have produced many outstanding Dairy rations through the years, but none offer a greater milk-making potential than Hi-O Cow Chow 36. This "super performing" supplement contains 36% protein. When mixed with grains according to Purina Research approved formulas it produces a "super" energy milking ration.

It is the unique scientific blending of a carefully calculated balance of proteins, minerals, vitamins and extra high energy milk-making ingredients that provides Hi-O Cow Chow 36 with its unusual power to produce extra milk.

Use Hi-O Cow Chow 36 for on-the-farm mixing or let your Purina dealer Check-R-Mix a Purina milking ration for you containing Hi-O Cow Chow 36. He has specific formulas to make a quality milking ration with the right protein level to fit your roughages and your herd.

Records show Hi-O Concentrate 36 not only increases milk production, but dairymen report significant increase in fat test.

THE PURINA CHALLENGE....

Good cows should be challenged to reach their genetic capacity for high milk and fat production. Many DHIA records prove conclusively that an increase in energy intake produces a corresponding increase in milk production which adds to milk income. Many production records from studies at the Purina Dairy Research Center substantiate this relationship. If you are not feeding your cows to their full milk making capacity, Purina Hi-O Cow Chow 36 is the supplement that could be what you need to achieve that goal.

Let your local Purina Dealer or mail the coupon and let us help you figure the nutritional requirements of your herd to determine the exact kind and amount of milk ration containing Hi-O Cow Chow 36 you should feed for maximum milk production.
